

DECORATION DAY NICELY OBSERVED

A LARGE CROWD ATTEND ALL OF THE SERVICES.

Chilly Weather and High Winds Make it a
Very Unusual Day for the Time of Year.—
Cemetery Presented a Very Handsome
Appearance owing to Recent Improvements.

Saturday was anything but pleasant for Decoration day, as a high wind prevailed all day and the air was decidedly chilly, but this seemed to make no difference to the people who had turned out to show their respect to the soldiers, those living and those who had passed before.

The procession, headed by the band, formed on the east side promptly at the hour set and marched to the cemetery, where the ceremonies of decorating the graves were gone thru. The cemetery presented a very handsome appearance to what it has in former years, there having been some system to the work of cleaning up and decorating, and it showed up well for the work done.

Returning to the city, those who cared for dinner were served at the G. A. R. hall by the ladies of the Relief Corps, who had prepared a very nice spread for the hungry ones.

After dinner the people again assembled at the opera house, where the exercises were held, and they proved to be very good and interesting. The program opened with a violin solo by

Mr. Cramer, which was played with the usual style and impressiveness which has already made Mr. Cramer famous in this city among the music lovers.

Reverend Peterson then offered a prayer, after which Mayor Wheelan spoke a few words of welcome to those present and to the old soldiers in general. This was followed by a chorus entitled "With Sheathed Swords," which was rendered very nicely.

Miss Nellie Vincent then favored those present with a recitation, "The Deathbed of Benedict Arnold" which was rendered in her usual impressive manner that never fails to win the hearts of her audience. This was followed by an appropriate reading by Mrs. Kate Townsend, entitled "The Soldier" which was appreciated by all. Then followed a chorus entitled "The March of the Goths" by the choir.

After this the audience was addressed by Dr. H. W. Bolton of Madison. The doctor is a very pleasant and entertaining speaker, and being an old soldier himself, was well fitted for the occasion. The doctor was probably pretty severe on the old bachelor, but he should remember that the good things of this earth are only so by comparison, so it is possible that the bachelor has his mission to fill on earth after all. The doctor held his audience interested for about three-quarters of an hour, and everybody felt glad that they had been there to hear him speak.

At the conclusion of the doctor's address the audience united in singing America, after which the Rev. Mr. Shaw pronounced the benediction.

COMMENCEMENT AND CLASS DAY.

EXERCISES AT THE LINCOLN
HIGH SCHOOL.

The Large Assembly Room Is Crowded Both
Evenings, and the Visitors are Rewarded by Some Splendid Exercises. - Graduates Make Good Showing.

On Wednesday evening the Class day exercises of the Howe high school occurred at the new Lincoln school, and as usual on such occasions the assembly room was not large enough to hold the people that came to hear the young people. It was said that there were 1,000 people in the large room, and it is certain that there was no room wasted, every nook being supplied with a chair, and still there were many who arrived a trifle late and were unable to find room and had to forego the pleasure of hearing the exercises at all. The following was the class day program:

Music..... Selected
A. H. Colborn, J. Cramer, J. A. Stoltz
Class History, east side..... Belle Quinn
Class History, west side..... Kattie Kellogg
Music..... Stella Lutz
Class Statistics..... Caroline Wassner
Class Prophecy..... Kate Curran
Class Characteristic..... High School
Farewell to Buildings..... Lacy Horton
Class Characteristic..... Grace Conway
Vocal Solo..... Mary Agnes
Address to Juniors..... Anna Johnson
Response..... Carl Olegard
Music..... Selected
High School Orchestra

Many of the articles were quite humorous in their makeup, and brought out the characteristics of the members of the class in a most witty manner, showing much care and attention in the preparation. The music of the evening was also fine and was appreciated by all.

The commencement exercises occurred on Thursday evening, and notwithstanding that this was the third night that there was entertainment at the schoolhouse, the building was again filled to overflowing, and many were disappointed in not getting into the building at all. There were twenty-three in the graduating class this year, they being as follows:

Gertrude Gaynor, Kate Corcoran,
Ruby St. Amour, Bertha Heiser,
Lacy Horton, Anna Johnson,
Kate Kellogg, Ethel Nissen,
Ed. Pomalville, Belle Quinn,
Amelia Schroedel, Will Teller,
Earl Brennan, John Corcoran,
Josie Huber, Clyde Herick,
Roy Nash, Bernice Johnson,
Guy Potter, Ora Nissen,
Louisa Sweet, Lynn Renne,
Caroline Wassner.

The program was a varied one and was well rendered, altho the lack of space prevents a detailed mention of each subject and the manner in which it was handled. Following is the program:

Instrumental Music.....
A. H. Colborn, James Cramer, John Stoltz,
Innovation..... Rev. W. A. Peterson
Oration..... Influence of home
Amelia Schroedel
Oration..... Faith in the Unseen
Gertrude Gaynor

Guy Potter
Oration..... The Negro Question
Ethel Nissen
Quartette..... Happy Day..... De Koven
Mithilda Bunge, Irving Brazier
Laura Reeves, I. A. Taylor
Oration..... Thos. B. Reed
Edward Pomalville
Oration..... The Foundation of Character
Louisa Sweet
Solo..... Selected
Eva Quinn
Oration..... Influence of Women
Ora Nissen
Essay..... Value of Money
Roy Nash
Vocal Solo..... Spring Awakening, C. D. Howley
Laura Reeves
Oration..... War and Arbitration

Duet..... Saviour, Beate an Evening Blessing
T. A. Taylor, Laura Reeves (Novin)
Debate—Resolved—That it is for the best interest of the people of the United States that the railroads should be owned and operated by the government.
Concession—It is conceded that such ownership and operation is constitutional.
Affirmative: Roy Nash, Earl Brennan
Negative: Will Teller, Clyde Herick
Quartette..... In the Hour of Solitude Splendor
Mithilda Bunge, Irving Brazier
Laura Reeves, T. A. Taylor
Decision of Judges
Presentation of Diplomas

The debate was a good one and was decided in favor of the affirmative, altho each side contested every inch of the ground and made it interesting all the way thru.

One feature of the three evenings' entertainment that is worthy of mention is the fact that in spite of the fact that the assembly room was at times crowded to three times its capacity, the air in the room was at all times fresh and pure. This was brought about by the working of the large ventilating fan connected with the heating apparatus, which was kept going and enough air forced into the room so that the temperature was raised only about two degrees above the outside atmosphere, and the variation in temperature during the entire evening when the largest crowd was there was only about two degrees. This would indicate that the heating and ventilating plants were going to do all that has been claimed for them.

A Whirlwind of Pleasure.

Would properly term "A Breezy Time." It is one of the most effective musical Farce Comedies in town, this year. There is just plot enough to keep people guessing. As to the specialties given by different members of the Company, each one of whom is an artist in his or her line, and as to the Band and Orchestra, it can be safely said that this season will outshine anything ever seen here in the line of music. There has been written many new additions in the line of comedy to "A Breezy Time" for the coming season, and the above company will surpass anything that may be seen here in the line of Farce Comedy. At the Opera House on Friday, June 5th.

FOR EXPERIMENT PURPOSES.

Cranberry Association to Turn Land Over to State.

A meeting of the Wisconsin State Cranberry Growers association was held on Saturday for the purpose of completing the arrangements for holding the experiments which the state will conduct in this section during the next few years thru the University of Wisconsin.

The association had been instrumental in securing the appropriation from the state for making these experiments and in view of this fact and also that the men from the university might not be hampered in their work by spending unnecessary time in selecting a site, the members of the association went ahead and secured the land for them.

The association leased from the Gaynor Blackstone company a tract of land containing ten acres on which to conduct the experiments, agreeing to pay the sum of $30 per year therefore, the lease to extend over a term of 15 years. This land will be turned over to the state for the same length of time, so it can be used in the manner thought best in carrying on the necessary experiments. The land is so situated that it is very good for the purpose intended and the lease includes the water rights, etc., so necessary for cranberry culture.

Men who are interested in cranberry culture are greatly pleased over the prospect of having some scientific work done for the cranberry. For several years past the association has been experimenting with what varieties came their way, and as a consequence they have brought out and improved thru culture many specimens from all parts of the world, and while his has been a great benefit to the fruit, they feel that there is much that can be accomplished by having things handled in a scientific manner. They are certain that the cranberry is as susceptible to improvement as any of the other fruits, and if this is so, the next few years may see some great developments along this line.

SUCKERS ARE PLENTIFUL

If One May Judge From the Number of Fakes That Exist.

Somebody has said that there is a sucker born every minute, and that never any die.

If the fakers who flood the country almost every week with prospectuses of bogus mining companies and similar skin games get anything for their efforts, this must be literally true.

During the past few months there has hardly a week passed that a batch of these circulars have not come thru the mails addressed to business men and others; in which the alleged company offers to sell stock in their concern all the way from 2 to 16 cents a share, with a table to show just how much the investor will be worth in one year's time, providing the stock goes up with the rapidity that the company figures on.

The circulars claim to come from mining companies, oil syndicates, rubber plantations, rice farms, and various other schemes that the average Wisconsin man knows nothing about.

The mines are all teeming with riches, usually containing gold, silver, copper, zinc, quicksilver, iron, cobalt, nickel, and several other metals that we could not pronounce, and the spelling of which we have forgotten, all in paying quantities, all that was needed was a little outside capital to pay a month's salary for two men and a boy, the boy to be employed in shoveling the minerals into a bushel basket, which would be carried out of the place by the two men and dumped onto a flat car to be hauled to the nearest town to be melted into ingots.

The prospectus generally contains the picture of the head engineer of the mine, who usually strongly resembles a South Clark street tough, dressed in his old clothes especially for the occasion. This is supposed to inspire the investor with great confidence, no doubt, and convince him that there is no fake connected with the matter in any way.

It is a fact well known to all who have looked into the matter that these so-called mining companies originate right in the city where the circulars come from, and that not one of the projector would now a piece of gold quartz from a chunk of limburger cheese, were it not for the fact that before he went into the gold mining business he had been in compelled to subsidize or free lunch, where he probably learned to be an expert on the last named article.

"A fool and his money are soon parted."

Woodmen Memorial Day.

The Woodmen of the World observe their annual memorial day in this city on Sunday next. On that day they will unveil the monument of the late Stridman Jensen in connection with the other strikers.

The members of the order will meet at their hall and march to the home of Mrs. Jensen after which they will march to the cemetery where the services will be held. Here there will be music by a quartet and an appropriate recitation by Miss Vincent, after which the monument will be unveiled. E. M. Whiel, state deputy of the order will also be present and make an address appropriate to the occasion.

REGULAR MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

MATTER OF ESTABLISHING PARK
TAKEN UP.

School Commissioners Ask for More Ground for School Purposes, Which Request Will Probably Be Granted.—Other Items of News
About the City.

The city council met in regular session last night with Mayor Wheelan in the chair. One of the most important things brought up was the request of several of the school commissioners who appeared before the city council and asked that the remainder of the fair ground site might be turned over to the school board for school purposes. They gave as the reason for asking this concession that the present grounds were not large enough to admit of the laying out of athletic grounds, etc., as was the desire of those interested in school matters, and also that the grounds adjacent to the school would not be of much use for park purposes on account of its proximity to the school. The council could not act upon the matter without some consideration and a committee was appointed to investigate the matter and report at the next meeting of the council.

The discussion of this matter also brought out the fact that the city should make some preparation for the future in securing grounds for a park, so that if the city ever made the growth that has been so confidently predicted by many, it would not be entirely without some sort of park grounds. The committee was also instructed to investigate this matter.

A proposition from the Taylor & Scott Land company was presented to the council that should be viewed with favor by all. This company is about to plat a large tract of land on the west side and throw it open for settling. They proposed to the city that if the city would furnish a team and a road machine they would contribute a like amount or more of labor and the roads in the plat would be put in good shape before any of it was sold. This is a matter that in the past has caused a great deal of trouble. Parties having land for sale would sell to settlers without platting the same and the consequence would be that after the land was all sold the settlers would begin to call on the city to build streets to them, with the result that the city would often have to buy strips of land from obstinate land owners in order to complete a street that should have been laid out before any of the land was sold.

Messrs. Schenck and Tomsak appeared before the council with a complaint concerning the water that annually floods them from the back country every spring. It seems that the ditch that was put thru two years ago has had to carry a lot of water, and the consequence is that several of the settlers on the west side find their property largely under water every spring. The matter is one that can not be remedied without the expenditure of considerable money, so that nothing was promised the complainants by the council.

Several applications were also made for sewers, etc., which were granted and after the allowance of a number of bills the council adjourned.

Maccabees Organize.—A lodge of the Maccabees of the World was organized in this city on Friday evening evening, with 17 members. There are thirty-two applications in and it is expected to increase the membership of the order to fifty during the next thirty days. The following officers were elected: Henry Timm, past commander; I. E. Cooley, commander; Ralph Lutheran, lieutenant commander; Guy Getts, record and finance keeper; Archie Rozelle, chaplain; Elmer Hanuou, sergeant; Edward Hein, master at arms; M. Timm, 1st master of guards; Benjamin Ingie, 2d master of guards; Geo. Schinn, sentinel; Julius Levin, picket. The next meeting will be held on Monday evening, June 8th, at Natwick's hall.

Will Marry Today.—At Nekeosa this evening occurs the marriage of Henry E. Fitch and Miss Nellie R. Young, both of Nekeosa. The wedding occurs at the Congregational church at 8 o'clock. Both of the contracting parties are well known in this city, the groom being a member of the Wood county bar and a successful attorney at Nekeosa, and is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fitch of Cranmoor. The bride is the sister of Mrs. J. E. Brazear of Nekeosa and a most estimable young lady. The Tribune unites with their many friends in wishing them a happy journey through life.

Played at Marshfield.—The ball team from this city went to Marshfield and played two games on Saturday and Sunday, both of which resulted in victories for the Marshfield team. Saturday's game stood 8 to 7, the one on Sunday was 17 to 0. The boys went up with rather a weak team to play Saturday's game, expecting reinforcements that evening for the game Sunday. These failed to put in an appearance, however, and the result was that the home boys lost both games. The home team plays at Manawa next Sunday.

Will Hold Reception.—The members of the Women's club will hold a reception at the home of Mrs. G. R. Gardner on Friday evening to which the public is cordially invited. A musical program has been prepared for the occasion and light refreshments will be served and a pleasant evening is assured to those who attend.

tend. The reception is given for the purpose of making up a deficit still existing in the amount necessary for equipping the manual training room in the new high school, so that those who attend may feel assured of helping along a good cause.

Hurt by a Horse.—Frank Klein, who is employed by the Grand Rapids Lumber company's barn, was quite severely injured on Monday evening by being kicked and trampled by a horse. He was working about the horses when one of them became frightened and kicked him down, after which the animal pranced about and stepped on him several times. Some companions came to his rescue and as it was he escaped with some severe cuts and bruises altho there was nothing serious. His wounds were dressed by a surgeon and he will soon be all right again.

For Street Builders.—The Tribune is in receipt of a copy of the tenth bulletin of the Wisconsin Geological and Natural History Survey. The bulletin is a bound book of some 400 pages profusely illustrated and treats largely of the construction and wearing qualities of pavements in the cities of the state, and should prove of great interest to parties engaged in such work. A copy of the bulletin may be had by sending 30 cents to E. A. Birge, Madison, Wis.

Got Three Years.—Joseph LeGendre, the boy who broke into the saloons at Babcock and stole a quantity of cigars and also touched up the tills for what money there was in sight, was given three years in the house of correction on Monday by Judge Webb, he having pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary. LeGendre comes from Mosinee, where he has an adopted father who is well to do. It is said that his love for strong drink was the cause of his downfall.

Released from Custody.—Chas. Funk, who was arrested on a charge of adultery, had his hearing before Justice T. J. Cooper on Saturday and Monday and the testimony submitted having failed to establish a case against him he was released from custody. The woman admitted on the witness stand that she had left home to accompany Funk, but stated that they had done nothing out of the way. The interested parties are from Vedum.

Given a Year and a Half.—F. M. Ryder had his hearing before Justice Brown on Friday on the charge of forgery and was bound over to the circuit court. On Monday he appeared before Judge Webb and pleaded guilty to the charge and received a sentence of eighteen months. This is another case where strong drink got the better of manhood and caused the downfall of a man who might have proved a useful member of society.

Released Homing Pigeons.—Twenty-three homing pigeons belonging to J. Franssens of Green Bay were released by the United States express man this morning, and the birds immediately started on a bee line for their home as soon as they got their bearings. Some birds released here some time ago made him trip from here to Green Bay in three hours and twenty-nine minutes. The pigeons released today will be heard from in a few days.

Voted for Sewers.—A special election was held at Marshfield last week for the purpose of voting on the question of issuing bonds for putting in sewers. There was some apprehension felt there for fear the measure might not be carried, but when the votes were counted it was found that there had been 814 cast for the issuance of bonds, and only 158 against. The proposition was carried in every ward of the city.

A Surprise Party.—A number of the friends of Dr. and Mrs. Looze assembled at their home on Tuesday evening and treated them to a genuine surprise. Mr. and Mrs. Looze rose to the occasion and welcomed their guests with true hospitality and a very pleasant evening was spent in dancing and kindred amusements.

Blue Rock Scores.

The gun club held three events at their shooting grounds on Sunday. An exceptionally heavy wind made good practice but poor scores. Following is the result:

First event—Drum 20, Mason 17, Scott 18, Nash 13, Brown 18.
Second event—Drum 18, Mason 17, Scott 15, Boies 15, Brown 15, Nash 16, Church 14, Lyon 15.
Third event—Drum 18, Mason 18, Scott 15, Brown 15, Boies 20, Nash 19, Lyon 20.

Wood's Brick Block, Grand Rapids, East Side.

"(Cheerful.)" said the great surgeon, resuming his address to the graduating class of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, "let me impress upon you one caution. When you have done everything in your power for a patient with the hope of benefit, never cease to apply some new device, no matter how little connection it may have as a remedy with the disease. By this course you will gain time, retain the confidence of the patient and keep him from sinking into despair."

The great surgeon bowed to the class as an announcement that his address was finished, and the members before passing out each waited his turn to take his preceptor by the hand. One hung back till the others had all left.

"Dr. Kenworthy," he said, "for the last time I ask your consent. I have no desire to rob you of the daughter you love, nor will she marry me without your leave. I hope you will not continue your opposition."

"I shall have no opposition to make when you have built up a practice."

The young man departed, sorrowful.

Ten years later Dr. Kenworthy was traveling in the west and stopped in a little town in the Rocky mountains. Being troubled with indigestion, he took a vial from his satchel, held the liquid in one hand, a spoon in the other bottle in one hand, a spoon in the other, and, drawing the cork with his teeth, held it there while he dropped the medicine in the spoon. A violent hicough caused him to relax his hold on the cork and at the same time drove it into his windpipe. In a few minutes the household, having been summoned by a violent pull at the bell, were gathered about the doctor.

Dr. Kenworthy of course knew very well what should be done in his case, but with the cork in his windpipe, people in the face, his eyes bulging out of their sockets, he was not only unable to articulate, but his faculties were momentarily impaired. The county doctor got the patient into a chair and began a succession of efforts to extract the cork. They were not successful, and it began to look as if the case was near. Suddenly the mountain practitioner's eye lighted as if with new hope. Throwing down his forceps and his books, he showed by his expressive countenance every indication that he had solved the problem. The bystanders wondered by what method the doctor was about to succeed, and the patient looked at him wonderingly.

"Take off his coat!" cried the young doctor imperatively. Two attendants seized Dr. Kenworthy and raised his violently, while the landlord drives him of his upper garment.

"Off with his collar!"

This, too, was accomplished with haste and energy of despair from within.

"Some beeswax!"

The house was hunted, but no wax found. The landlady brought some honey, which as soon as the country doctor saw it he exclaimed fully:

"The very thing; far better to beeswax; more soothing; more to purpose."

Dipping his fingers into the dish broke off a piece of the comb, the filled with honey, and began rubbing it upon Dr. Kenworthy's throat.

Now, the great surgeon was so thoroughly cognizant that rubbing the comb on a man's throat for the purpose of expelling a cork from his pipe was so useless, the idea was so preposterously ridiculous, that had he able he would have burst into a laugh. He did the next thing he laughed inwardly. Whether this small mirth relaxed the muscles or coughings had by this time loosened the cork, or both, no man, not even the great surgeon himself, could tell the fact remains that the stopper spent from its place, and the patient spit it out on the floor.

For a few minutes the relieved was so overwhelmed with coughs that he was unable to get a word. The village doctor showed more than ordinary interest in his

BROTHER GARDNER'S LECTURES

He Argues That Riches Are Not Necessary to Happiness

[Copyright, 1913, by C. B. Lewis.]

"MY friends, de subject of my lectur' dis evening' am, 'Kin We Be Happy Wid-out Bein' Rich?' At de fust send off every pussion in de large an' cultivated audience will answer in de negative, but let us consider de matter a little.

"None of us eber think of a rich man widout a vision risin' up befo' us. Dat vision locates dat rich man in a red velvet chair. He has fo'teen servants standin' behind him in de doah to jump if he sneezes. Dar am champagne in front of him, bananas on his right, cocoanuts on his left. In a silver platter on his knees am fer cream, sweet cake, ten cent cigars an' a cocktail.

"In his breast pocket am $10,000 in greenbacks, and each of his feet rests on a bag of gold. All around him am eight day clocks and rugs that cost as much as $12 apiece. He's got three tons of coal in de cellar an' a bar'l of flour in de pantry. He hain't got no rent to pay, an' he's got hosses an' keeridges in de barn.

"If he wants to walk out, de street kyars will be keeful how dey bounce him ober a fence, an' if he stays home a dozen newspaper men will call to tell him dat he owns de earth.

"Dat's de vision dat allus dances befo' our eyes when we read of a millionaire, an' we hold our breath till we get red in de face. Madness an' envy an' jealousy comes along wid de vision, an' de fust thing we know we am jawin' de ole woman an' kicken' de family dawg. We kin almost taste dat champagne an' hear de chink of dat gold. In de midst of de vision de ole woman gherally breaks in to tell us dat de coal am out or de flour bar'l am empty, an' we git up an' cuss de rich an' de char' dat de world am all wrong.

"My friends, let us make no mistake. I libed 'longside of a rich man fur years an' years, an' I had opportunity to see de odder side. No man eber gits to be wuth a million dollars dat his troubles doan' begin next day. No man will come to you or me to try to sell us windmills, lightning' rods an' patent churns, but de way dey do track up de front steps of de millionaire am awful to see.

"He's got to git his ha'r cut de fust thing an' shave once a day, an' if his boots ain't blacked or his necktie gits around under his left ear dar's a thousand people to notice it.

"You an' me know dat two shillin' suspenders hold up our trousers as well as a pair costin' $6. De millionaire knows it, too, but he's got to pay out $5.75 extra 'cause he's in de swim.

"In our vision we see him seated in a red velvet chair. It don't fit his back nor give him de comfort of an ole fashioned split bottom, but he's got to grin an' bear it 'cause he's rich.

"In all de y'ars dat I knowed a rich man sunthin was allus happenin' to him. While I was gwine on foot his hosses run away an' broke his leg. While I was enjoyin' my kitchen stove his steam pipes busted and killed his cook. While my cabin was too small game fur thunderstorms lightning' struck his palatial mansion an' knocked all de chimneys off. While me an' de ole woman was grubbin' along by ourselves he had to have sixteen of his relations in his house. My dawg wasn't wuth 15 cents, but he lived on. His dawg was wuth $250, an' somebody pisened him within two weeks.

"Bein' I was only Brudder Gardner, no one expected an' thing of me, but dat rich man had t' rent a post office box, a church pew, my a steam yacht an' carry around a five dollar umbrella an' worry ober it.

"He nebber had no show to eat onions, make molasses candy nor pop corn. He nebber slid down hill, went rabbit huntin' nor drunk cider out of a jug. If he eber got down of an evenin' wid his butes off an' a feelin' dat he wanted to take comfort, his wife dragged him off to de theater or a man called to sell him a gold mine.

"My friends, what d'ye s'pose was de end of dat man? He used to come ober to my cabin an' eat a biled dinner wid me an' weep 'cause he was rich. He wanted to be pore an' wear old clothes an' eat corned beef; but, alas, he couldn't be. He had to be rich an' eat fried oysters an' drink champagne an' pretend to be happy.

"What was his end? Why, he went down an' down till he reached de limit at last. Dat limit was reached when he had to give a party an' buy $10,000 wuth of roses to decorate de house. De next mornin' dey found him dead in his bed, an' de look on his face proved dat he was glad to git out of it all.

"Don't you make no mistake, my friends. We was put into dis world to take comfort. Natur' nebber intended a man to sot up like a crowbar. She nebber meant dat he must be on his good behavior all de time. She invented sweet cake an' champagne, but she also invented barley coffee an' baked taters.

A Musical Performance.

The man had attended a musical party and the next morning met a friend who lived next door.

"I was at a delightful affair at your neighbor's last night," he said.

"Yes, I heard something going on there. What was it?"

"The execution of a number of musical selections by the young lady."

"Oh, it was an execution, was it?" said the friend in a tone of relief. "I am glad to hear it was no worse. It sounded to me like a murder."—Comfort.

Didn't Take Away His Appetite.

Damocles continued to eat heartily. "That suspended sword doesn't seem to affect your appetite," observed Dionysius.

"No," replied his guest. "It's nothing to having a board bill hanging over you."

Tucking his napkin under his chin, he attacked the hash with renewed zest.—New York Tribune.

In a State of Doubt.

"You claim to be a law abiding citizen, don't you?" asked the man who argues.

"I don't know whether I am or not," answered Mr. Sirius Barker. "There's a lot of laws and police regulations that I never read. I can't be sure that I'm not violatin' some of 'em every day."—Denver News.

STEALING A DOG.

Sir Edwin Landseer's Experience With a London Painter.

Sir Edwin Landseer, the animal painter, one time was about to put the finishing touches to the portrait of a dog belonging to a nobleman and was expecting a visit from his model when the owner arrived in a state of great perturbation without the dog. The animal had been stolen. After talking over the loss with Sir Edwin the owner decided to leave the matter in the painter's hands, together with a ten pound note as a reward for the recovery of the dog.

Sir Edwin's acquaintance with the dog fanders was large, and he summoned to his aid one Jem Smith, who he thought might put him on the right track. He showed the man the picture and the bank note and promised that if the dog were restored no questions should be asked. Six weeks later Smith arrived at the studio leading the missing dog by a piece of string. "Here is your £10," said the artist, "and I suppose I must ask no questions. But now that the affair is done with you may just as well tell me about it."

After a moment of hesitation the man confessed that he himself was the thief. "You, you thundering rascal!" exclaimed Sir Edwin. "Then why on earth have you kept us in suspense all this time?" "Well, you see, gov'ner," was the answer, "I stole the dog, but the gentleman I sold him to kep' 'im so jolly close that I hadn't a chance of neldin' him again till yesterday, and that's the truth, s'elp me."

The Power of Thought.

Beware of what you think, for what you think, quite as much as what you do, molds your character. Wrong acts persisted in will wreck any life, but wrong thoughts have just as sure an effect. It not infrequently happens that people who live fairly good lives so far as their actions go do not feel it necessary to set so close a guard on their thoughts. These are hidden, and of what harm is it to occasionally cherish a vulgar thought if one does not allow it to escape in action? Of what harm to hate if one does not show it? To imagine oneself committing wrong acts if one does not actually commit them? But the laws of life say that every thought affects the whole being. As a man's heart is, so will he be. Evil thoughts gradually undermine the character, and some day these thoughts will burst into action which is irremediable.—Woman's Home Companion.

Signs of Death.

Of course the various physical phenomena which usually accompany the act of dying vary considerably in the early stages with the causes which are producing death.

To one schooled in death scenes the physiognomy which the grim destroyer presents is one not easily mistaken. Among the many signs of death that are unmistakable are the falling pulse, the coldness of the extremities, the change in the countenance as the venous blood courses the arteries, the skin grows clammy as the various vessels refuse to longer perform their functions, the eyes glaze, the jaw drops, fluid accumulates in the windpipe, causing the "death rattle," and finally the breathing ceases altogether.

Shaping the Verdict.

In a book on life in the Sierra Nevada mountains Clarence King tells of a cowboy trial of a Mexican on a charge of horse stealing. A jury was gathered in the street, showed into a room, and some time later a dozen fellows burst in demanding the verdict. "Not guilty," answered the foreman. With volleyed oaths and ominous laying of hands on pistol hilts the boys slammed the door with, "You'll have to do better than that!" In half an hour the advocate gently opened the door again. "Your opinion, gentlemen?" "Guilty!" "Correct! You can come out. We banged him an hour ago."

Buddhist Prayer Wheels.

In the sacred city of Ourga, the headquarters of Mongolian Buddhism, are numerous "prayer wheels," inscribed with prayers and dedications to Buddha, and the more they are turned the more religious they make you. Many of the more devout persons turn smaller wheels held in the left hand while manipulating the large one with the right hand. Curious bits of rags flying above the palisades of the inclosures of the town are "prayer flags." No Mongolian house is without them—the more the better—for each one is supposed to convey a prayer to Buddha.

Don't Know Too Much.

There is nothing else a man so much needs as the ability to "make up his mind." Men who have crowded their minds have a great difficulty in "making them up," and indecision is the fatal consequence. He who knows a little and knows how to apply it is more fortunate than those with a superior culture which paralyzes their action.—Boston Globe.

The Observant Youth.

The pompous new resident had been having a set-to with the smart boy of the neighborhood. This was the youngster's parting shot: "Aw, you don't need t' think you're no whole legislacler jist becuz eberybody's a'ays presentin' bills to you!"—Baltimore American.

THE PRINCIPLE OF REST.

A Few Practical Hints That Americans Should Consider.

The principle of rest is the principle of relaxation, a temporary cessation or suspension of energy from any part or from all of the body. Absolute rest implies the complete "letting go" of all tension, mental, nervous and physical. All are involved to some extent in every act of our daily life, nor can they be entirely separated.

Let us see what will happen if we place the body in a reclining position so comfortably arranged that absolute physical repose would seem inevitable. Then let the mind take hold of some problem and concentrate on it until all the mental energy is aroused. This energy is unconsciously communicated to the nervous system, and soon the entire physical self is in a highly tensed condition. Few people realize this until their attention is called to it. They think they must be resting when the body is inactive. It is not necessary that the body be exercising in order to be tense. A set of muscles may be nervously tense and yet be apparently motionless. This difference between a tense muscle and a muscle entirely relaxed or devitalized is what I want you to thoroughly understand, for this tense condition brought on by mental and nervous strain and often held without relaxation for hours produces greater fatigue than many forms of exercise that are more physical in execution.

Remember always that the mind is the great controlling power, and it is only when the mind becomes as nearly as possible a perfect blank that the body can rest satisfactorily. If the body would rest, the mind must rest also. In other words, "think rest," "let go" of everything mental and relax completely.—Rose Edson-Helme in Pilgrim.

LEAPING POWERS OF DEER.

Fence Seven Feet High Cleared by a Jump Up a Steep Hill.

I was sitting with the stalker among the rocks on the top of the high ridge which divides the forest of Glen Quoich from Clunay. We were quietly eating our lunch when we saw three stags coming toward the march fence a few hundred yards below us. They were not alarmed, but, as the stalker said, "moving to themselves."

The first two, without increasing their pace, jumped clean over the high deer fence. The third struck the top wire and was thrown head over heels backward. He went away a few yards, took a run, cleared it easily and joined his comrades.

Now, a story about Japanese deer. Several of them got out of a deer park on a mountain and into a large wood adjoining. We entered them with a train of oats into a walled paddock off the deer park, having left a gap in the four inch wire netting of the deer fence at the edge of the wood.

When they were safely in, a man went round and closed the gap, and we opened the large gate into the deer park, thinking we could easily move them in. Not a bit of it. Directly the heaters began they charged them and jumped the wire paling back into the wood again.

This paling is seven feet high and is on very steeply sloping ground. They had to jump up hill, and it seemed to me so utterly incredible that any animal could jump such a height that I went to look at the place, and there sure enough the keeper showed me the hairs of the deer on the top wire where they struck it going over, and the men said they saw one deer tumble down on landing at the other side.—Country Life.

London's Crossings.

You can cross the three most dangerous streets in Manchester on an average 8,000 times in safety, but the three thousand and first time you will be run over. If you are not somebody else will be in your place, for the average a year never fails by more than a point or two either there or in London. But in London you can only pass the crossing at Blackfriars bridge, which is the most dangerous spot in the city, 550 times. You may be the lucky person who escapes by chance, but somebody is certain to suffer to keep the average up, counting the accidents over a space of five years up to date. Next comes the Mansion House crossing, with a 700 to one chance.—London Answers.

A Hero's Tribute.

Lincoln said of Washington: Washington is the mightiest name on earth, long since mightiest in the cause of civil liberty, still mightiest in moral reformation. On that name a eulogy is expected. It cannot be. To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible; let none attempt it. In solemn awe pronounce the name and in naked, deathless splendor leave it shining on.

O-P-C suspensory

FOR SAFETY, HEALTH AND COMFORT.

Try an O-P-C suspensory for ten days or two weeks, and satisfy yourself as to its merits—the investment is small.

If it does not make you feel better—does not increase your capacity for work—your endurance—your vitality—your nerve energy—do not wear it any more.

If it does, it is the best investment you have ever made.

IT WILL, because it relieves the unconscious strain which every man experiences—although a little one, it is a big one when multiplied by the number of seconds in a day.

It is guaranteed to be satisfactory, or money refunded.

Almost a Ghost Story.

The following contribution was received at the Tribune office yesterday, and while it is not customary to publish anonymous contributions, the rule is broken this time that the public may know of the thrilling things that may happen to a quiet, law-abiding citizen who according to his own testimony is at home and contemplating sleep even at so early an hour as ten o'clock.

The wind was blowing hard, and being heavily charged with rain, it made a soothing sound, as it beat ceaselessly against the wire screens and then against the window panes.

It was ten o'clock in the evening, and I was ready to retire when a peculiar noise outside attracted my attention. We had just fixed up our lawn to the queen's taste, and thinking it was a cow that had strayed, I vigorously opened the door and sallied forth into the storm and darkness, with murder in my heart, and a large rock in each hand.

I peered into the gloom, which was made the blacker, by the light from the windows. As my eyes became accustomed to the darkness I could faintly make out two black objects, about the size of veal calves, making sundry gyrations around the clothes-reel. Their movements were so unlike anything I had ever seen, that the murderous feeling in my heart was changed to one of self-preservation, and I stopped short in my advance, as I noted a sheen and a glitter, which the bodies of the objects reflected, and straightway pictures of sea-serpents and all sorts of impossibilities were conjured up in my mind, and they seemed to look in turn like everything thought of. I wanted to advance and slay them—beast, bird or fish—but then thought of those dependent on me and started to retreat saying to myself "Other friends have flown before, on the morrow they will leave me." But the things seemed to divine my purpose, and I had hardly made up my mind, when they began coming toward me, with the most uncanon movements. They seemed to advance by tacking, first describing a half circle one way and then the other. My hair felt like porcupine quills, but fascination and fear rooted me to the spot; just then a strong gust of wind came up and they came toward me with a bound. I thought of my life insurance, shut my eyes and hurried with all my strength, one of the rocks I held. When I opened my eyes one of the fearsome things was lying at my feet in a heap, while the other was circling around me, like a demon gloating over a trapped victim. But now I came to my senses and realized that they were only two umbrellas that had been left open on the porch to dry and the wind drove them out on the lawn.

The one I fired at will never go on an excursion again, as it has three ribs broken and a hole in its skin sufficiently large to throw a cat thru. Moral: Do not believe in ghosts until you see one, and prove it.

SCARE CROW.

Barbers Study.

Tonsorial artists in all corners of the state are beginning to put in their leisure moments each day in the pursuit of learning. Within a couple of months the examinations under the new license law will be held, and altho it is not expected that any practicing barbers will be disqualified, no one cares to run the risk of being thrown out.

It is the medical side of the subject on which most of the razor wielders feel themselves a trifle shaky. According to the law every licensed barber must have a practical knowledge of the nature and treatment of all common diseases of the skin. Only a few of them can qualify on a scientific examination on this branch of the art. They have picked up a few rules of thumb concoctions which generally manage to have the desired effect, but only a few of them could tell an anti-septic solution from a soothing syrup, if called upon to name the ingredients of which each is composed.

Land Company Organized.

There was organized on Tuesday in this city a company to be known as the Taylor & Scott company, which will engage in the sale of land, making of abstracts and the selling of insurance, etc. The members of the new company are F. B. Barnes of Oshkosh, J. E. Daly, T. A. Taylor, William Scott, A. J. Hasbrouck and E. Oberbeck of this city. The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—J. E. Daly.
Vice President—A. J. Hasbrouck.
Secretary and Treasurer—E. Oberbeck.
Authorized agents—Taylor and Scott.

The new company are already engaged in platting a tract of about twenty-five acres on the west side and on Monday they expect to put a gang of men at work in building the streets, so that the streets will be all laid out and improved before any building is done on the tract.

It is the intention of the company to sell their lots when wanted on a small payment down with a regular monthly payment thereafter. Several lots have already been sold, and several more spoken for. The company will also build several houses which they will sell on the installment plan.

Evils Needing Correction.

A man interested in cemetery matters spoke to a reporter for the Tribune on Monday concerning a matter that should be stopped out of common decency, and that without any advice or admonition from outside sources.

The man in question stated that certain parties had been in the habit of taking flowers from the graves in the cemetery after the blooms had been placed there by the relatives and friends of deceased persons.

It seemed as if this could hardly be possible, but we were assured that it was a fact. We had heard of a person being so mean that he would steal the pennies off from a dead man's eyes, but we had supposed that this was a simile rather than a fact, but it seems that if not true, there are others that perform acts equally reprehensible. It should be stopped. The man who robs a church altar might produce evidence of the existence of circumstances that would in a measure justify him in the act, but there can be no excuse for the person who steals the flowers from a grave.

Another matter that was spoken of was the fact that many persons who visit the cemetery in rigs are in the habit of driving thru the narrow foot-paths, and as they are not broad enough for driveways the result is that in turning in or out of them the driver is invariably obliged to cut across the corner of somebody's lot, thereby injuring the looks of the lot to a great extent. These may seem like small matters, but it is the observance of the small things that enables those interested to make a place that it is a pleasure instead of a reproach to visit.

Card of Thanks.

In behalf of Wood county Post No. 22 Department of Wisconsin G. A. R. I desire to thank the citizens of the city of Grand Rapids and vicinity for helping us to make the services of the day of May 30th, Decoration day, a grand success. Personally we thank the mayor and common council for the financial aid given. We are also very grateful to the members of our city band for their valued service, and to the clergy who assisted in prayer and benediction, to the chorus class for the beautiful music rendered, both vocal and instrumental, to Miss Nellie Vincent for the recitation she gave, which seemed to be beyond criticism, to Mrs. Kate Townsend for her reading, to the mayor, Honorable W. Wheelan, for his personal appearance among us on the platform, and for his kind words of welcome. Thanks to our esteemed friend and citizen, Edmund Arpin, who so kindly and generously donated his time and money to furnish us with conveyance to carry us to and from the cemetery, to our honored soldier friend, H. W. Bolton of Madison, Wis., who gave us such a gratifying address, and last we desire to thank every one who helped in any way to observe the day in the way it was intended it should be observed.

Among the most extraordinary pieces of superstition known to have been used by the early Americans was a figure of a donkey's head used as a representative of the deity. There is no doubt whatever that the same emblem was once used among the Hittites, the Egyptians and one or two other nations as a symbol of their red god, Sut. The superstition of the yellow donkey of India, the story of the swift ass of eastern Asia and the ass of Dionysius and many other marvelous ass stories are all survivals of that curious form of religious worship, the adoration of the ass' head.

The Object of Our Forest Policy Is the Making of Prosperous Homes.
President Roosevelt in a recent address before the Society of American Foresters, a professional body of which he is an associate member, declared the forest problem to be in many ways the most vital internal problem of the United States. The object of our forest policy, he said, is the making of prosperous homes. This policy must not be imposed upon the people. It can be effective only when the people believe that it is wise and useful; that it is indispensable. The president called attention to the close relation of forestry to the mining industry in the west, to the lumbering industry, whose very existence depends upon the success of forestry; to the railroads and to the grazing interests. Of the success of forestry in this country he said, "I believe that the foresters of the United States will create a more effective system of forestry than we have yet seen."

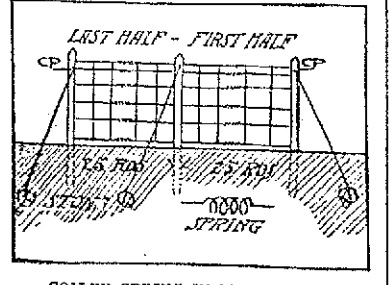

Among other things, President Roosevelt said: "And now, first and foremost, you can never afford to forget for one moment what is the object of our forest policy. That object is not to preserve the forests because they are beautiful, though that is good in itself, nor because they are refuges for the wild creatures of the wilderness, though that, too, is good in itself, but the primary object of our forest policy, as of the land policy of the United States, is the making of prosperous homes. It is part of the traditional policy of home making of our country. Every other consideration comes as secondary. The whole effort of the government in dealing with the forests must be directed to this end, keeping in view the fact that it is not only necessary to start the homes as prosperous, but to keep them so. That is why the forests have got to be kept. You can start a prosperous home by destroying the forests, but you cannot keep it prosperous that way."

"And you are going to be able to make that policy permanently the policy of the country only in so far as you are able to make the people at large and, above all, the people concretely interested in the results in the different localities appreciative of what it means. Impress upon them the full recognition of the value of its policy and make them earnest and zealous adherents of it. Keep in mind the fact that in a government such as ours it is out of the question to impose a policy like this from without. The policy as a permanent policy can come only from the intelligent conviction of the people themselves that it is wise and useful, nay, indispensable."

"Forestry is the preservation of forests by wise use," to quote a phrase I used in my first message to congress. Keep before your minds that definition. Forestry does not mean abbreviating that use; it means making the forest useful not only to the settler, the rancher, the miner, the man who lives in the neighborhood, but indirectly to the man who may live hundreds of miles off down the course of some great river which has had its rise among the forest bearing mountains."

The Centrifugal Separator.
The use of the centrifugal separator as a purifier of milk intended for retail trade has already reached some commercial importance. The disadvantages of the method, as pointed out by O. F. Hunziker in a recent bulletin of the New York Cornell experiment station, are the time and cost involved, and especially the fact that skim milk and cream when once separated do not mix well and when reunited the cream does not rise as abundantly as in fresh milk. "As the consumer judges the richness of milk largely by the amount of cream that rises on it, he naturally and unjustly regards centrifuged milk as an article poor in fat and is unwilling to pay the price it is really worth."

Expansion Spring in Wire Fencing.
I have used almost all kinds of devices for bracing the corner post and have found all a failure to a certain extent until I commenced to use the expansion spring, which takes all the strain from the post in winter and keeps your fence tight in summer, says an Ohio Farmer correspondent. In building a hundred rods of fence first set the corner post good and solid; anchor with stone three or four feet underground, which is far better than the brace, using the expansion spring in connection with each wire every twenty-five rods. At the end of fifty rods set another post and anchor one way to draw the first fifty rods, as that is as much as can be drawn at once, one wire at a time. When each wire is drawn tight enough to cause the springs to expand a half inch between each coil, it is tight enough. Fasten the wire, remove the ratchet, and the same with each wire. When you have finished the first half, fasten the wires to the middle post and go ahead with the last the same as the first, placing the springs twenty-five rods apart, using the ratchet for tightening the wires; fasten the wires to your posts, then place stays of some kind to keep logs from spreading them apart. This is one of the best methods for using straight wire that any farmer can try. The cut shows mode of building and anchoring; C P, corner posts.

Lawyer's Invention May Revolutionize Methods of Naval Warfare.
Charles L. Burger, a New York lawyer, has invented what is said by naval experts to be the coming boat in sea fighting. It is called the sub-surface boat, so named, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, because it consists of two long, narrow boats, one immediately above the other. The higher boat is on the surface of the water; the lower one is entirely submerged. It carries the gasoline engine which are to drive the queer craft sixteen knots an hour and also carries the torpedo tube with which the craft is to throw torpedoes against ships of war. The upper deck of this novel boat is of cellulose and unsinkable. It carries a conning tower for the pilot. This conning tower is too small to be struck with a large shot, and it carries sufficient armor to protect the pilot from small shot.

The sub-surface boat is designed to fight in the open. It is supposed to be fast enough to dart in and deliver its torpedo without offering the guns of a battleship or cruiser enough exposed surface for an effective shot.

One of the boats is being built by a company organized by the inventor, and if the craft meets expectations the invention will be purchased by the United States government.

Says Pearl-making Is Easy.
The artificial production of pearls in large quantities is a simple problem in the view of Dr. H. Lyster Jameson. One cause of pearl formation proves to be a worm, which has its origin in the cockle or "tapestry shell," from which the larvae pass to the mussel and may be eaten with the latter by the elder or scoter, reaching maturity in the intestines of these birds. If the larvae remain in the mussel long enough, pearls are formed. With full knowledge of the life histories of these parasites it is believed that pearl oysters or pearl mussels may be infected to any desired extent by placing them in infected company, and the infected mollusks can then be left to themselves in suitable beds until the pearls are sufficiently developed.

New Birds From Fernando Po.
The recent return of Lieutenant Boyd Alexander from an ornithological expedition to the island of Fernando Po, on the western coast of Africa, has disclosed a new and wonderfully rich avifauna. Lieutenant Alexander's collection numbers 400 specimens, representing sixty-eight species, out of which thirty-two are new to science. Many of the nearest relatives of the new birds occur on Mount Kilima Ujaro and Mount Elgon, in east Africa, and, although the island is only separated from the mainland by thirty miles of water, very few of its birds are identical with the west African species. Apart from the birds, the island has a very rich fauna and flora.

The advantage of using distilled water, especially for mixing stock solutions, is quite thoroughly recognized by the majority of up to date photographers, but the methods of telling whether or not water is really distilled are not so well known. Here are some tests:

Place in several thoroughly cleaned test tubes some of the water to be tested. Add to the contents of the first tube a drop or two of a solution of silver nitrate, and if a milkiness is produced the presence of chlorides is evident. Put a few drops of hydrochloric acid in the second tube and then add a little chloride of barium solution and shake well. Milkiness shows that the water contains sulphates. In the third tube add to the water a small quantity of a 10 per cent solution of oxalate of ammonium. A precipitate indicates the presence of some calcium salt. A little ammonium sulphocyanide put in the fourth tube will cause the solution to turn a reddish color if iron is present. Put four ounces of water in a clear glass dish and add a drop of chemically pure sulphuric acid and then a drop of 1 per cent solution of permanganate of potash. View the solution against a piece of white paper, and if it preserves a slightly rose tint for several hours the water is pure, but any discoloration within a few minutes indicates the presence of vegetable matter in some form.

Collodion Paper Printing.
Probably one of the greatest mistakes made by amateurs in the use of collodion papers, especially the matt variety, is printing too light. A brilliant, permanent print on collodion matt paper can only be obtained, says a writer in the Brooklyn Eagle, by a thorough toning which reaches clear through the emulsion and leaves a deep, rich deposit of silver. When the print is too light, it cannot remain long in either the gold or platinum baths, and the result is a light surface toning which has practically no depth, and consequently the picture loses that rich tone which is the chief characteristic of collodion matt printing out papers.

The Milky Sea.
The milky sea, as it is known to mariners, is not yet fully understood. It seems to be most common in the tropical waters of the Indian ocean and is described as weird, ghastly and awe inspiring and as giving the observer on shipboard the sensation of passing through a sort of luminous fog, in which sea and sky seem to join and all sense of distance is lost. The phenomenon is probably due to some form of phosphorescence.

NEKOOSA.

Another baseball game was played here last Sunday. The "Saratoga Chips" and the "Ever Awake" team played the first game during the forenoon. The farmers were dressed in "bull fight" red suits. A number of the local fans took them for Tulas because of their playing and the color of their uniforms. So confident were they of success that they spread their foregone conclusions to the country folks far and near. About a dozen of them snote the air at the mercy of Bobbie Herrick, the local boy pitcher. Until the first part of the eighth inning the visitors did not have a score, but thru an error they were fortunate enough to save themselves from being shut out. The score was in a bimetallic ratio, 10 to 1 in favor of the "Ever Awake" team. The first team played with the Sand Bars of Grand Rapids in the afternoon. The local team won the game by a score of 15 to 5. They will play at Plainfield next Sunday.

Robert H. Howart, a resident of Marshfield from 1881 to 1892, spent last Thursday and Friday here shaking hands with old friends. He is now chief engineer for the paper company at Nekoosa. Mr. Howart built a machine shop and foundry soon after he came here on the site of Crosby & Meyers cheese warehouse. At that time the building was surrounded by trees and in an isolated spot. He was member of the council two years and one of the first captains in the volunteer fire department. Mr. Howart was surprised at the great progress Marshfield had made during the eleven years he had been absent. Marshfield News.

Formaldehyd for Potato Scab.

The Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment Station offers the following in one of its bulletins:

"Formaldehyd may be used to lessen damage from potato scab. Immerse the unsprouted and uncut seed potatoes for two hours in a solution made by adding one-half pound of 40 per cent. formaldehyd to 15 gallons of water. If the tubers are deeply scabbed, extend the time to three or four hours. After treatment cut the tubers in the usual manner. They may be handled freely without danger. The same solution may be used five or six times in succession if the treatment is continued a little longer each time. Do not use the potato solution for grain smut, as it is too strong."

Driven To Desperation.

Living at an out of the way place, remote from civilization, a family is often driven to desperation in case of accident, resulting in Burns, Cuts, Wounds, Ulcers, etc. Lay in a supply of Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's the best on earth. 25c, at John E. Daly's drug store.

The Chapel Car was crowded to the utmost at both services last Sunday, and Rev. C. H. Rust, baptized ten people at the river in the afternoon. DECORATION DAY NICELY OBSERVED

A LARGE CROWD ATTEND ALL OF THE SERVICES.

Chilly Weather and High Winds Make it a Very Unusual Day for the Time of Year.—Cemetery Presented a Very Handsome Appearance owing to Recent Improvements.

Saturday was anything but pleasant for Decoration day, as a high wind prevailed all day and the air was decidedly chilly, but this seemed to make no difference to the people who had turned out to show their respect to the soldiers, those living and those who had passed before.

The procession, headed by the band, formed on the east side promptly at the hour set and marched to the cemetery, where the ceremonies of decorating the graves were gone thru. The cemetery presented a very handsome appearance to what it has in former years, there having been some system to the work of cleaning up and decorating, and it showed up well for the work done.

Returning to the city, those who cared for dinner were served at the G. A. R. hall by the ladies of the Relief Corps, who had prepared a very nice spread for the hungry ones.

After dinner the people again assembled at the opera house, where the exercises were held, and they proved to be very good and interesting. The program opened with a violin solo by

Mr. Cramer, which was played with the usual style and impressiveness which has already made Mr. Cramer famous in this city among the music lovers.

Reverend Peterson then offered a prayer, after which Mayor Wheelan spoke a few words of welcome to those present and to the old soldiers in general. This was followed by a chorus entitled "With Sheathed Swords," which was rendered very nicely.

Miss Nellie Vincent then favored those present with a recitation, "The Deathbed of Benedict Arnold," which was rendered in her usual impressive manner that never fails to win the hearts of her audience. This was followed by an appropriate reading by Mrs. Kate Townsend, entitled "The Soldier," which was appreciated by all. Then followed a chorus entitled "The March of the Goths" by the choir.

After this the audience was addressed by Mr. H. W. Bolton of Madison. The doctor is a very pleasant and entertaining speaker, and being an old soldier himself, was well fitted for the occasion. The doctor was probably pretty severe on the old bachelor, but he should remember that the good things of this earth are only so by comparison, so it is possible that the bachelor has his mission to fill on earth after all. The doctor held his audience interested for about three-quarters of an hour, and everybody felt glad that they had been there to hear him speak.

At the conclusion of the doctor's address the audience united in singing America, after which the Rev. Mr. Shaw pronounced the benediction.

COMMENCEMENT AND CLASS DAY.

EXERCISES AT THE LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL.

The Large Assembly Room is Crowded Both Evenings, and the Visitors are Rewarded by Some Splendid Exercises.—Graduates Make Good Showing.

On Wednesday evening the Class day exercises of the Howe high school occurred at the new Lincoln school, and as usual on such occasions the assembly room was not large enough to hold the people that came to hear the young people. It was said that there were 1,000 people in the large room, and it is certain that there was no room wasted, every nook being supplied with a chair, and still there were many who arrived a trifle late and were unable to find room and had to forego the pleasure of hearing the exercises at all. The following was the class day program:

Musical Selections: A. H. Colcord, J. Cramer, J. A. Stiel, Class History, east side, Katie Kellogg, Music, Stella Lutz, Class Prophecy, Caroline Wassner, Class Statistics, Kate Corcoran, Chorus, High School, Lay Horton, Farewell to Buildings, Grace Conway, Class Characteristics, Grace Conway, Vocal Duet—We Meet Again, Bailey, Anna Reeves, Ruby Nettek, Address to Juniors, Anna Johnson, Response, Carl Odegaard, Music, High School Orchestra, Selected Class Gifts, John Corcoran, Presentation of Statuary, Laurie Drumb, President's Address, Bernice Johnson, Music, High School Orchestra, Selected

Many of the articles were quite humorous in their make-up, and brought out the characteristics of the members of the class in a most witty manner, showing much care and attention in the preparation. The music of the evening was also fine and was appreciated by all.

The commencement exercises occurred on Thursday evening, and notwithstanding that this was the third night that there was entertainment at the schoolhouse, the building was again filled to overflowing, and many were disappointed in not getting into the building at all. There were twenty-three in the graduating class this year, they being as follows:

Gertrude Gaynor, Kate Corcoran, Ruby St. Amour, Bertha Heiser, Lucy Horton, Anna Johnson, Kate Kellogg, Ethel Nissen, Ed. Poirainville, Belle Quinn, Amelia Schroedel, Will Teller, Earl Brennan, John Corcoran, Josie Huber, Clyde Herrick, Roy Nash, Bernice Johnson, Guy Potter, Ora Nissen, Louisa Sweet, Lynn Renne, Caroline Wassner.

The program was a varied one and was well rendered, altho the lack of space prevents a detailed mention of each subject and the manner in which it was handled. Following is the program:

Instrumental Music: A. H. Colcord, James Cramer, John Stiel, Invocation, Rev. W. A. Peterson, Oration, Influence of home, Amelia Schroedel, Oration, Faith in the Unseen, Gertrude Gaynor, Vocal Solo, Angel's Serenade, Brazer, Essay, Virgil Clavier Method of Piano Practice, Ruby St. Amour, Oration, Newspapers, Josie Huber, Violin Solo, Selected, Oration, The Trust Question, Guy Potter, Oration, The Negro Question, Ethel Nissen, Quartette, Happy Day, De Koven, Mathilda Bunge, Irving Brazeau, Laura Reeves, T. A. Taylor, Oration, Thos. B. Reed, Edward Poirainville, The Foundational of Character, Louisa Sweet, Solo, Selected, Oration, Influence of Women, Ora Nissen, Essay, Value of Money, Bertha Heiser, Vocal Solo, Spring Awakening, C. D. Howley, Laura Reeves, War and Arbitration, Lynn Renne, Duet, Savor Biscuits and Evening Blessing, T. A. Taylor, Laura Reeves, (Nevin) Debate—Resolved—That it is for the best interest of the people of the United States that the railroads should be owned and operated by federal government.

Concessions—It is contended that such ownership and operation is constitutional. Affirmative: Roy Nash, Earl Brennan, Negative: Will Teller, Clyde Herrick, Quartette, In This Hour of Softened Slander, Mathilda Bunge, Irving Brazeau, Laura Reeves, T. A. Taylor, Decision of Judges, Presentation of Diplomas.

The debate was a good one and was decided in favor of the affirmative, altho each side contested every inch of the ground and made it interesting all the way thru.

One feature of the three evenings' entertainment that is worthy of mention is the fact that in spite of the fact that the assembly room was at times crowded to three times its capacity, the air in the room was at all times fresh and pure. This was brought about by the working of the large ventilating fan connected with the heating apparatus, which was kept going and enough air forced into the room so that the temperature was raised only about two degrees above the outside atmosphere, and the variation in temperature during the entire evening when the largest crowd was there was only about two degrees. This would indicate that the heating and ventilating plants were going to do all that has been claimed for them.

A Whirlwind of Pleasure.

Would properly term "A Breezy Time." It is one of the most effective musical Farce Comedies in town, this year. There is just plot enough to keep people guessing. As to the specialties given by different members of the company, each one of whom is an artist in his or her line, and as to the Band and Orchestra, it can be safely said that this season will outshine anything ever seen here in the line of music. There has been written many new additions in the line of comedy to "A Breezy Time" for the coming season, and the above company will surpass anything that may be seen here in the line of Farce Comedy. At the Opera House on Friday, June 5th.

FOR EXPERIMENT PURPOSES.

Cranberry Association to Turn Land Over to State.

A meeting of the Wisconsin State Cranberry Growers association was held on Saturday for the purpose of completing the arrangements for holding the experiments which the state will conduct in this section during the next few years thru the University of Wisconsin.

The association had been instrumental in securing the appropriation from the state for making these experiments and in view of this fact and also that the men from the university might not be hampered in their work by spending unnecessary time in selecting a site, the members of the association went ahead and secured the land for them.

The association leased from the Gaynor Blackstone company a tract of land containing ten acres on which to conduct the experiments, agreeing to pay the sum of $30 per year therefore, the lease to extend over a term of 15 years. This land will be turned over to the state for the same length of time, so it can be used in the manner thought best in carrying on the necessary experiments. The land is so situated that it is very good for the purpose intended and the lease includes the water rights, etc., so necessary for cranberry culture.

Men who are interested in cranberry culture are greatly pleased over the prospect of having some scientific work done for the cranberry. For several years past the association has been experimenting with what varieties came their way, and as a consequence they have brought out and improved thru culture many specimens from all parts of the world, and while his has been a great benefit to the fruit, they feel that there is much that can be accomplished by having things handled in a scientific manner. They are certain that the cranberry is as susceptible to improvement as any of the other fruits, and if this is so, the next few years may see some great developments along this line.

SUCKERS ARE PLENTIFUL

If One May Judge From the Number of Fakes That Exist.

Somebody has said that there is a sucker born every minute, and that never any die.

If the fakirs who flood the country almost every week with prospectuses of bogus mining companies and similar skin games get anything for their efforts, this must be literally true.

During the past few months there has hardly a week passed that a batch of these circulars have not come thru the mails addressed to business men and others; in which the alleged company offers to sell stock in their concern all the way from 2 to 16 cents a share, with a table to show just how much the investor will be worth in one year's time, providing the stock goes up with the rapidity that the company figures on.

The circulars claim to come from mining companies, oil syndicates, rubber plantations, rice farms, and various other schemes that the average Wisconsin man knows nothing about.

The mines are all teeming with riches, usually containing gold, silver, copper, zinc, quicksilver, iron, cobalt, nickel, and several other metals that we could not pronounce, and the spelling of which we have forgotten, all in paying quantities, all that was needed was a little outside capital to pay a month's salary for two men and a boy, the boy to be employed in shoveling the minerals into a bushel basket, which would be carried out of the place by the two men and dumped onto a flat car to be hauled to the nearest town to be melted into ingots.

The prospectus generally contains the picture of the head engineer of the mine, who usually strongly resembles a South Clark street tough, dressed in his old clothes especially for the occasion. This is supposed to inspire the investor with great confidence, to doubt and convince him that there is no fake connected with the matter in any way.

It is a fact well known to all who have looked into the matter that these so-called mining companies originate right in the city where the circulars come from, and that not one of the projector would now a piece of gold quartz from a chunk of lumber cheese, were it or for the fact that before he went into the gold mining business he had been compelled to subsist on free lunch, where he probably learned to be an expert on the last named article.

"A fool and his money are soon parted."

Woodmen Memorial Day.

The Woodmen of the World observe their annual memorial day in this city on Sunday next. On that day they will unveil the monument of the late Sheridan J. Lemier in connection with the other activities.

The members of the order will meet at their hall and march to the home of Mrs. Jessner after which they will march to the cemetery where the services will be held. Here there will be music by a quartet and an appropriate recitation by Miss Vincent, after which the monument will be unveiled. E. M. Wheel, state deputy of the order will also be present and make an address appropriate to the occasion.

REGULAR MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

MATTER OF ESTABLISHING PARK TAKEN UP.

School Commissioners Ask for More Ground for School Purposes, Which Request Will Probably Be Granted.—Other Items of News About the City.

The city council met in regular session last night with Mayor Wheelan in the chair. One of the most important things brought up was the request of several of the school commissioners who appeared before the city council and asked that the remainder of the fair ground site might be turned over to the school board for school purposes. They gave as the reason for asking this concession that the present grounds were not large enough to admit of the laying out of athletic grounds, etc., as was the desire of those interested in school matters, and also that the grounds adjacent to the school would not be of much use for park purposes on account of its proximity to the school. The council could not act upon the matter without some consideration and a committee was appointed to investigate the matter and report at the next meeting of the council.

The discussion of this matter also brought out the fact that the city should make some preparation for the future in securing grounds for a park, so that if the city ever made the growth that has been so confidently predicted by many, it would not be entirely without some sort of park grounds. The committee was also instructed to investigate this matter.

A proposition from the Taylor & Scott Land company was presented to the council that should be viewed with favor by all. This company is about to plat a large tract of land on the west side and throw it open for settling. They proposed to the city that if the city would furnish a team and a road machine they would contribute a like amount or more of labor and the roads in the plat would be put in good shape before any of it was sold. This is a matter that in the past has caused a great deal of trouble. Parties having land for sale would sell to settlers without platting the same and the consequence would be that after the land was all sold the settlers would begin to call on the city to build streets to them, with the result that the city would often have to buy strips of land from obstinate land owners in order to complete a street that should have been laid out before any of the land was sold.

Messrs. Schenck and Tomsia appeared before the council with a complaint concerning the water that annually floods them from the back country every spring. It seems that the ditch that was put thru two years ago has had to carry a lot of water, and the consequence is that several of the settlers on the west side find their property largely under water every spring. The matter is one that can not be remedied without the expenditure of considerable money, so that nothing was promised the complainants by the council.

Several applications were also made for sewers, etc., which were granted and after the allowance of a number of bills the council adjourned.

Maccabees Organize.—A lodge of the Maccabees of the World was organized in this city on Friday evening, with 17 members. There are thirty-two applications in and it is expected to increase the membership of the order to fifty during the next thirty days. The following officers were elected: Henry Timm, past commander; I. E. Cooley, commander; Ralph Luthera, lieutenant commander; Guy Getts, record and finance keeper; Archie Rozelle, chaplain; Elmer Hannon, sergeant; Edward Hein, master at arms; M. Timm, 1st master of guards; Benjamin Ingle, 2d master of guards; Geo. Schinn, sentinel; Julius Levin, picket. The next meeting will be held on Monday evening, June 8th, at Natwick's hall.

Will Marry Today.—At Nekoosa this evening occurs the marriage of Henry E. Fitch and Miss Nellie R. Young, both of Nekoosa. The wedding occurs at the Congregational church at 8 o'clock. Both of the contracting parties are well known in this city, the groom being a member of the Wood county bar and a successful attorney at Nekoosa, and the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fitch of Cranmoor. The bride is the sister of Mrs. J. E. Brazeau of Nekoosa and a most estimable young lady. The Tribune unites with their many friends in wishing them a happy journey through life.

Played at Marshfield.—The ball team from this city went to Marshfield and played two games on Saturday and Sunday, both of which resulted in victories for the Marshfield team. Saturday's game stood 8 to 7, the one on Sunday was 17 to 0. The boys went up with rather a weak team to play Saturday's game, expecting reinforcements that evening for the game Sunday. These failed to put in appearance, however, and the result was that the home boys lost both games. The home team plays at Manawa next Sunday.

Will Hold Reception.—The members of the Woanans club will hold a reception at the home of Mrs. G. R. Gardner on Friday evening to which the public is cordially invited. A musical program has been prepared for the occasion and light refreshments will be served and a pleasant evening is assured to those who attend.

tend. The reception is given for the purpose of making up a deficit still existing in the amount necessary for equipping the manual training room in the new high school, so that those who attend may feel assured of helping along a good cause.

Hurt by a Horse.—Frank Klein, who is employed by the Grand Rapids Lumber company's barn, was quite severely injured on Monday evening by being kicked and trampled by a horse. He was working about the horses when one of them became frightened and kicked him down, after which the animal pranced about and stepped on him several times. Some companions came to his rescue and as it was he escaped with some severe cuts and bruises altho there was nothing serious. His wounds were dressed by a surgeon and he will soon be all right again.

For Street Builders.—The Tribune is in receipt of a copy of the tenth bulletin of the Wisconsin Geological and Natural History Survey. The bulletin is a bound book of some 400 pages profusely illustrated and treats largely of the construction and wearing qualities of pavements in the cities of the state, and should prove of great interest to parties engaged in such work. A copy of the bulletin may be had by sending 30 cents to E. A. Birge, Madison, Wis.

Got Three Years.—Joseph LeGendre, the boy who broke into the saloons at Babcock and stole a quantity of cigars and also touched up the tills for what money there was in sight, was given three years in the house of correction on Monday by Judge Webb, he having pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary. LeGendre comes from Mosinee, where he has an adopted father who is well to do. It is said that his love for strong drink was the cause of his downfall.

Released from Custody.—Chas. Funk, who was arrested on a charge of adultery, and his hearing before Justice T. J. Cooper on Saturday and Monday and the testimony submitted having failed to establish a case against him he was released from custody. The woman admitted on the witness stand that she had left home to accompany Funk, but stated that they had done nothing out of the way. The interested parties are from Veedum.

Given a Year and a Half.—F. M. Ryder had his hearing before Justice Brown on Friday on the charge of forgery and was bound over to the circuit court. On Monday he appeared before Judge Webb and pleaded guilty to the charge and received a sentence of eighteen months. This is another case where strong drink got the better of manhood and caused the downfall of a man who might have proved a useful member of society.

Released Homing Pigeons.—Twenty-three homing pigeons belonging to J. Franssens of Green Bay were released by the United States express man this morning, and the birds immediately started on a bee line for their home as soon as they got their bearings. Some birds released here some time ago made her trip from here to Green Bay in three hours and twenty-nine minutes. The pigeons released today will be heard from in a few days.

Voted for Sewers.—A special election was held at Marshfield last week for the purpose of voting on the question of issuing bonds for putting in sewers. There was some apprehension felt there for fear the measure might not be carried, but when the votes were counted it was found that there had been 814 cast for the issuance of bonds, and only 153 against. The proposition was carried in every ward of the city.

A Surprise Party.—A number of the friends of Dr. and Mrs. Looze assembled at their home on Tuesday evening and treated them to a genuine surprise. Mr. and Mrs. Looze rose to the occasion and welcomed their guests with true hospitality and a very pleasant evening was spent in dancing and kindred amusements.

Blue Rock Scores.

The gun club held three events at their shooting grounds on Sunday. An exceptionally heavy wind made good practice but poor scores. Following is the result:

First event—Drumb 20, Mason 17, Scott 18, Nash 13, Brown 18.
Second event—Drumb 18, Mason 17, Scott 15, Boles 15, Brown 15, Nash 16, Church 14, Lyon 15.
Third event—Drumb 18, Mason 18, Scott 18, Brown 15, Boles 20, Nash 19, Lyon 20.

EXPERTS IN THE WHIP.
One Man Could Crack Off a Snake's Head at Twenty Feet.
"That crabbled old German, Schopenbauer, who said the crack of a whip was like a drink from the bad place, would have found but little to complain of if he had postponed his passing for awhile," said a thoughtful man, "for the whip is getting to be an awful scarce article in this age. I suppose the whip will finally pass out of existence altogether unless it is put to a new use. Of course the small riding whip, the kind which jockeys use in urging the horses they ride, will be used as long as horseflesh is used.
"But the kind of whip the old German had in mind was of a larger, longer and older type, the kind the ox driver uses even now in some of the more remote sections of the world. Whips of this kind generally swing easily on the end of a long handle. Frequently the handle is eight or ten feet long and is made of hickory or some wood that is supple enough to bend in the green state. The whip itself, which is generally four and six plait rawhide, is from ten to fifteen feet in length, with a sea grass cracker on the end tightly twisted and knotted at spaces an inch apart. It is this article that makes the noise of which the old German pessimist complained, and a whip of this kind in the hands of an expert can be popped until it sounds like the crack of doom. In a quiet forest where timber men carry on their work this noise is even fiercer than it is in the cities.
"Teamsters in the cities still use the old whip to some extent, but it is gradually going out, and the sharp crack of the sea grass is rarely heard.
"Speaking of whips, I am reminded of the marvelous accuracy some men acquire in the use of whips. I suppose the Eskimo has reached a higher standard of proficiency in this respect than any other class of men. I have seen boys of this race pop a silver half dime at a distance of twenty feet every time they swung a whip. They can simply hit anything they want to hit as long as it is within reach of the whip. But here in the south I have seen ox cart drivers crack off a snake's head at a distance of twenty feet, and they could do it whenever it pleased them to do it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Doctor Here Again!

Dr. Lytle of the St. Luke's Hospital Will Be Here June 10, and Every Four weeks Thereafter.

YOU PAY THE DOCTOR FOR HIS SERVICES AFTER YOU ARE CURED.

Dr. Lytle of the St. Luke's Hospital has, at the request of a number of patients now under his treatment in this county, established a permanent branch office at the Commercial House in this city, and will be here May 17th. One day only. Those afflicted with obstinate diseases of long standing restored to health by a never failing scientific method.
Are you suffering with catarrh, anemia, jaundice, eruption on the skin, scrofulous swelling, eczema, pimples, boils, nervousness, sleepless nights, a disordered stomach, with sick headache, and consumption, are you broken down, with cold feet and a loss of nerve force? Do you want to get cured? Diseases of women, irregularities, painful periods, a never failing cure.
Don't wait until you are past help but consult the able Specialist at once. While he has cured many, there are thousands who should go to him and receive advice and treatment that will prolong their lives and make their remaining years, years of happiness.
The doctor is a man of vast hospital and general experience, and treats successfully such diseases as hemorrhoids, piles, rupture, kidney and bladder trouble, varicocele, diseases of women and diseases of men. Do not fail to give the doctor a call and satisfy yourself what your trouble is, and he will frankly tell you if you are curable or not. It will cost you nothing and it will be worth hundreds of dollars.

THE ESKIMO DOG.
Alma, the Wonder Dog, His Master, and Doct. H. P. Fuchs, M.D.
Of the Eskimo dog I could write a book. In all probability descended from the wolf, he is the Eskimo's one domestic animal, but is of as much value to him as all the domesticated animals of more favored races put together. He drags him and his family and their chattels from place to place, hauls to his door the meat of seal or walrus, leads him with unerring scent to the tiny orifice in the snow which indicates the breathing hole of a seal, drags him for miles in pursuit of the bear and finally brings the huge brute to bay, rounds up the musk oxen till his master can come up for the kill, and then perchance in the darkness of some long winter night, when the hand of hunger grips the settlement relentlessly, he yields up his life to feed his master and his family and his coat to keep them warm.
Though mixed now with other strains, so that black and reddish and spotted dogs are to be seen as well as the pure blooded grays and whites, this animal still retains to a large degree the strength, endurance and fierce lust for blood when in pursuit of game that characterized its wild ancestors. Combined with these traits are an intelligence and faithfulness that make many of these animals the peer of any of their more favored brothers in more genial climates.—Leslie's Monthly.

Clever Reasoning.
Rather an original lesson in political economy was that once taught by the Japanese nobleman, Awoto, and thus translated by Sir Edwin Arnold in "Seas and Lands":
"One evening as he was going to the palace to take his turn in keeping the night watch he let ten cash drop out of his funder case into the stream and then bought fifty cash worth of torches to search for the lost coin. His friends laughed at him for spending so much in order to recover so little, and he replied, with a frown:
"Sir, you are foolish and ignorant of economics. Had I not sought for these ten cash they would have been lost forever—sunk in the bottom of the Namerigawa. The fifty cash which I have expended on torches will remain in the hands of the tradesmen. Whether he has them or I is no matter, but not a single one of the sixty has been lost, and that is a clear gain to the country."

The Oriole and the Bee.
Birds, their heads being small, are usually regarded as stupid, but an amateur naturalist pointed out the other day a proof that the Baltimore oriole at least is very intelligent. "Take the oriole's habitat in the summer," he said, "and all around it you will find the decapitated bodies of bees. The oriole is fond of honey, and he has discovered somehow that the bee carries honey in a sac. Accordingly he rushes down on the insect, snips off its head, removes its viscera and then swallows the honey that is now laid bare. This shows intelligence on the oriole's part, but I have not yet described the thing which shows the bird's reasoning power most strongly. It is only the stingless male, white headed bees that the oriole slays. The stinging bees he leaves alone wisely."—Philadelphia Record.

Will Power and the Thumb.
Would be hypnotizers should avoid trying conclusions with persons possessing longer jointed thumbs than their own, for if there is any truth in palmistry the strength of one's will depends upon the formation of the thumb—the will power of its owner being great or little according to the length or want of length of its upper joint.
How the thumbs of the Roman holiday makers were formed mattered nothing to the defeated gladiator, whose fate hung upon their being bent forward or backward—a method of decreeing life or death to which perhaps we owe a man at another's mercy being said to be under his thumb.—Chambers' Journal.

The Pancake Bell.
In the tower of St. Mary's church, Morley, Yorkshire, England, hangs an ancient bell bearing the date 1169. Every Shrove Tuesday morning it is rung for one hour, and the custom has been followed for centuries, although its origin is quite unknown. The people of the locality believe that it has some connection with the baking of pancakes on the day before Lent. Hence its name, the "pancake bell." On the last occasion of the ringing scores of people went into the belfry to take a pull at the rope in order that they might claim some share in the traditional usage.

Realistic.
Brown—Did you hear about that realistic fruit pie that Thompson painted? He had it out in his garden and the birds actually came down and picked at the fruit.

A SURGICAL DEVICE

"Young gentlemen," said the great surgeon, concluding his address to the graduating class of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, "let me impress upon you one caution. When you have done everything in your power for a patient with the hope of benefit, never cease to apply some new device, no matter how little connection it may have as a remedy with the disease. By this course you will gain time, retain the confidence of the patient and keep him from sinking into despair."
The great surgeon bowed to the class: as an announcement that his address was finished, and the members before passing out each waited his turn to take his preceptor by the hand. One hung back till the others had all left.
"Dr. Kenworthy," he said, "for the last time I ask your consent. I have no desire to rob you of the daughter you love, nor will she marry me without your leave. I hope you will not continue your opposition."
"I shall have no opposition to make when you have built up a practice."
The young man departed, sorrowful; the doctor took up his hat and went to the hospital to perform a critical operation.
Ten years later Dr. Kenworthy was traveling in the west and stopped in a little town in the Rocky mountains. Being troubled with indigestion, he took a viad from his satchel, held the bottle in one hand, a spoon in the other, and, drawing the cork with his teeth, held it there while he dropped the medicine in the spoon. A violent hiccup caused him to relax his hold on the cork and at the same time draw it into his windpipe. In a few minutes the household, having been summoned by a violent pull at the bell, were gathered about the doctor.
Dr. Kenworthy of course knew very well what should be done in his case, but with the cork in his windpipe, purple in the face, his eyes bulging out of their sockets, he was not only unable to articulate, but his faculties were momentarily impaired. The country doctor got the patient into a chair and began a succession of efforts to extract the cork. They were not successful, and it began to look as if the end was near. Suddenly the mountain practitioner's eye lighted as if with a new hope. Throwing down his forceps and his hooks, he showed by his expressive countenance every indication that he had solved the problem. The bystanders wondered by what new method the doctor was about to win success, and the patient looked at him wonderingly.
"Take off his coat!" cried the younger doctor imperatively. Two attendants seized Dr. Kenworthy and raised him violently, while the landlord divested him of his upper garment.
"Off with his collar!"
This, too, was accomplished with the haste and energy of despair fringed with hope.
"Some beeswax!"
The house was hunted, but no beeswax found. The landlady brought in some honey, which as soon as the country doctor saw it he exclaimed joyfully:
"The very thing; far better than beeswax; more soothing; more to my purpose."
Dipping his fingers into the dish, he broke off a piece of the comb, the cells filled with honey, and began rubbing it upon Dr. Kenworthy's throat.
Now, the great surgeon was so thoroughly cognizant that rubbing honey-comb on a man's throat for the purpose of expelling a cork from his windpipe was so useless, the idea was so supremely ridiculous, that had he been able he would have burst into a fit of laughter. He did the next thing; he laughed inwardly. Whether this internal mirth relaxed the muscles or his coughings had by this time loosened the cork, or both, no man, not even the great surgeon himself, could tell, but the fact remains that the stopper slipped from its place, and the patient spat it out on the floor.
For a few minutes the relieved man was so overwhelmed with congratulations that he was unable to get in a word. The village doctor showed a more than ordinary interest in his patient by sinking into a chair and drawing a few long breaths of relief. As soon as Dr. Kenworthy could escape from a clamor of congratulations he said to the village physician:
"Doctor, I have practiced and taught surgery for thirty years. I am familiar with every newly discovered device for relieving a patient from an obstruction in the larynx or the esophagus, but never have I before heard of rubbing the patient's throat with honey. Will you kindly inform me of the connection between the remedy and the cure?"
"Dr. Kenworthy," replied the village doctor, "you do not seem to recognize me."
The surgeon took from his vest pocket a nearsighted glass and surveyed his preserver.
"Upon my word—you are not—you can't be!"
"Yes, I am. I listened to your address to our class the day we were graduated, and I have not forgotten your advice never to cease applying some device to a patient in danger, no matter how little connection it might have with the disease as a remedy."
"Young man," replied the great surgeon, "you possess the principal faculty needed in your profession. You could retain the confidence of a corpse. Come back with me to civilization. I will run you into my practice, which I expect to turn over to some one as soon as I return."
"Is Elsie married, doctor?"
"No; she's waiting for you. She will go with the practice."
"I'll be ready to leave on the next train." ANNE ATWOOD.

BROTHER GARDNER'S LECTURES

He Argues That Riches Are Not Necessary to Happiness

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.]

"My frens, de subject of my lectur' dis eavenin' am, 'Kin We Be Happy Wid-out Bein' Rich?' At de fust send off every pussion in dis large an' cultivated audience will answer in de negative, but let us consider de matter a little.

"None of us eber think of a rich man widout a vision risin' up befo' us. Dat vision locates dat rich man in a red velvet chair. He has fo'teen servants standin' behind him in de doah to jump if he sneezes. Dar am champagne in front of him, bananas on his right, coconuts on his left. In a silver platter on his knees am ice cream, sweet cake, ten cent cigars an' a cock-tail.

"In his breast pocket am $10,000 in greenbacks, and each of his feet rests on a bag of gold. All around him am eight day clocks and rugs that cost as much as $12 apiece. He's got three tons of coal in de cellar an' a bar'l of flour in de pantry. He hain't got no rent to pay, an' he's got hosses an' keeridges in de barn.

"If he wants to walk out, de street kyars will be keeful how dey bounce him ober a fence, an' if he stays home a dozen newspaper men will call to tell him dat he owns de airth.

"Dat's de vision dat allus dances befo' our eyes when we read of a millyonaire, an' we hold our breath till we get red in de face. Madnness an' envy an' jealousy comes along wid de vision, an' de fust thing we know we am jawin' de ole woman an' kickin' de family dawg. We kin almost taste dat champagne an' hear de chink of dat gold. In de midst of de vision de ole woman generally breaks in to tell us dat de coal am out or de flour bar'l am empty, an' we git up an' cuss de rich an' de-clar dat de world am all wrong.

"My frens, let us make no mistake. I libed 'longside of a rich man fur years an' years, an' I had opportunity to see de odder side. No man eber gits to be wuth a millyon dollars dat his troubles doan' begin next day. No man will come to you or me to try to sell us windmills, lightning' rods an' patent churns, but de way dey do track up de front steps of de millyonaire am awful to see.

"He's got to git his ha'r cut de fust thing an' shave once a day, an' if his boots ain't blacked or his necktie gits around under his left ear dar's a thousand people to notice it.

"You an' me know dat two shillin' suspenders hold up our trousers as well as a pair costin' $6. De millyonaire knows it, too, but he's got to pay out $5.75 extra 'cause he's in de swim.

"In our vision we see him seated in a red velvet chair. It don't fit his back nor give him de comfort of an ole fashioned spint bottom, but he's got to grin an' bear it 'cause he's rich.

"In all de y'ars dat I knowed a rich man sunthin was allus happenin' to him. While I was gwine on foot his hosses run away an' broke his leg. While I was enjoyin' my kitchen stove his steam pipes busted and killed his cook. While my cabin was too small game fur thunderstorms lightning struck his palatial mansion an' knocked all de chimneys off. While me an' de ole woman was grubbin' along by ourselves he had to have sixteen of his relations in his house. My dawg wasn't wuth 15 cents, but he lived on. His dawg was wuth $250, an' somebody pizened him y'thin two weeks.

"Bein' I was only Brudder Gardner, no one spected an' thing of me, but dat rich man had t' rent a post office box, a church pew, buy a steam yacht an' carry around a f've dollar umbrella an' worry ober it.

"He nebber had no show to eat onions, nake molasses candy nor pop corn. He nebber slid down hill, went rabbit huntin' nor drunk cider out of a jug. If he eber sot down of an eavenin' wid his butes off an' a feelin' dat he wanted to take comfort, his wife dragged him off to de theater or a man called to sell him a gold mine.

"My frens, what d'ye s'pose was de end of dat man? He used to come ober to my cabin an' eat a billed dinner wid me an' weep 'cause he was rich. He wanted to be pore an' wear old clothes an' eat corned beef; but, alas, he couldn't be. He had to be rich an' eat fried oysters an' drink champagne an' pretend to be happy.

"What was his end? Why, he went down an' down till he reached de limit at last. Dat limit was reached when he had to give a party an' buy $10,000 wuth of roses to decorate de house. De next mawnin' dey found him dead in his bed, an' de look on his face proved dat he was glad to git out of it all.

"Don't you make no mistake, my frens. We was put into dis world to take comfort. Natur' nebber intended a man to sot up like a crowbar. She nebber meant dat he must be on his good behavior all de time. She invented sweet cake an' champagne, but she also invented barley coffee an' baked taters.

"In imaginashun I kin see a pletur'. It's of a pore man gwine home of a Saturday night wid his wages in his pocket. He stops at de grocery an' orders codfish an' sugar. He stops at de cobbler's an' takes home his children's shoes all mended up. He orders kerosene ile an' soap for ober Sunday, an' he knows dar's butter an' flour in de house.

"He gits home to be greeted at de gate by fo' chill'en an' a dawg. He opens de door to receive de smiles of his wife. He hasn't got no coupons to cut off, no checks to draw, no bonds to hide under de bed. All he's got to do am to eat supper, box de children's ears an' set de hull eavenin' long wid his feet in de oven of de cook stove an' his mind at rest.

"Dat's me, an' dat's you, an' dat's ebery odder pore man in de kentry, an' when we lie down at night or rise up in de mawnin' we order realize an' be grateful fur de fact dat we am takin' comfort in hunks an' chunks, while de rich man am hastenin' to his doom."

STEALING A DOG.

Sir Edwin Landseer's Experience With a London Fancier.

Sir Edwin Landseer, the animal painter, one time was about to put the finishing touches to the portrait of a dog belonging to a nobleman and was expecting a visit from his model when the owner arrived in a state of great perturbation without the dog. The animal had been stolen. After talking over the loss with Sir Edwin the owner decided to leave the matter in the painter's hands, together with a ten pound note as a reward for the recovery of the dog.

Sir Edwin's acquaintance with the dog fanciers was large, and he summoned to his aid one Jem Smith, who he thought might put him on the right track. He showed the man the picture and the bank note and promised that if the dog were restored no questions should be asked. Six weeks later Smith arrived at the studio leading the missing dog by a piece of string. "Here is your £10," said the artist, "and I suppose I must ask no questions. But now that the affair is done with you may just as well tell me about it."

After a moment of hesitation the man confessed that he himself was the thief. "You, you thundering rascal!" exclaimed Sir Edwin. "Then why on earth have you kept us in suspense all this time?" "Well, you see, gov'ner," was the answer, "I stole the dog, but the gen'lman I sold him to kep' 'im so jolly close that I hadn't a chance of nicking him again till yesterday, and that's the truth, s'elp me."

The Power of Thought.

Beware of what you think, for what you think, quite as much as what you do, molds your character. Wrong acts persisted in will wreck any life, but wrong thoughts have just as sure an effect. It not infrequently happens that people who live fairly good lives so far as their actions go do not feel it necessary to set so close a guard on their thoughts. These are hidden, and of what harm is it to occasionally cherish a vulgar thought if one does not allow it to escape in action? Of what harm to hate if one does not show it? To imagine oneself committing wrong acts if one does not actually commit them? But the laws of life say that every thought affects the whole being. As a man's heart is, so will he be. Evil thoughts gradually undermine the character, and some day these thoughts will burst into action which is irremediable.—Woman's Home Companion.

Signs of Death.

Of course the various physical phenomena which usually accompany the act of dying vary considerably in the early stages with the causes which are producing death.

To one schooled in death scenes the physiognomy which the grim destroyer presents is one not easily mistaken. Among the many signs of death that are unmistakable are the falling pulse, the coldness of the extremities, the change in the countenance as the venous blood courses the arteries, the skin grows clammy as the various vessels refuse to longer perform their functions, the eyes glaze, the jaw drops, fluid accumulates in the windpipe, causing the "death rattle," and finally the breathing ceases altogether.

Shaping the Verdict.

In a book on life in the Sierra Nevada mountains Clarence King tells of a cowboy trial of a Mexican on a charge of horse stealing. A jury was gathered in the street, showed into a room, and some time later a dozen fellows burst in demanding the verdict. "Not guilty," answered the foreman. With volleyed oaths and ominous laying of hands on pistol hilts the boys slammed the door with. "You'll have to do better than that!" In half an hour the advocate gently opened the door again. "Your opinion, gentlemen?" "Guilty!" "Correct! You can come out. We hanged him an hour ago."

Buddhist Prayer Wheels.

In the sacred city of Ourga, the headquarters of Monzolian Buddhism, are numerous "prayer wheels." Inscribed with prayers and dedications to Buddha, and the more they are turned the more religious they make you. Many of the more devout persons turn smaller wheels held in the left hand while manipulating the large one with the right hand. Curious bits of rags tying above the palisades of the inclosures of the town are "prayer flags." No Monzolian house is without them—the more the better—for each one is supposed to convey a prayer to Buddha.

Don't Know Too Much.

There is nothing else a man so much needs as the ability to "make up his mind." Men who have crowded their minds have a great difficulty in "making them up," and indecision is the fatal consequence. He who knows a little and knows how to apply it is more fortunate than those with a superior culture which paralyzes their action.—Boston Globe.

The Observant Youth.

The pompous new resident had been having a set-to with the smart boy of the neighborhood. This was the youngster's parting shot:

THE PRINCIPLE OF REST.

A Few Practical Hints That Americans Should Consider.

The principle of rest is the principle of relaxation, a temporary cessation or suspension of energy from any part or from all of the body. Absolute rest implies the complete "letting go" of all tension, mental, nervous and physical. All are involved to some extent in every act of our daily life, nor can they be entirely separated.

Let us see what will happen if we place the body in a reclining position so comfortably arranged that absolute physical repose would seem inevitable. Then let the mind take hold of some problem and concentrate on it until all the mental energy is aroused. This energy is unconsciously communicated to the nervous system, and soon the entire physical self is in a highly tensed condition. Few people realize this until their attention is called to it. They think they must be resting when the body is inactive. It is not necessary that the body be exercising in order to be tense. A set of muscles may be nervously tense and yet be apparently motionless. This difference between a tense muscle and a muscle entirely relaxed or devitalized is what I want you to thoroughly understand, for this tense condition brought on by mental and nervous strain and often held without relaxation for hours produces greater fatigue than many forms of exercise that are more physical in execution.

Remember always that the mind is the great controlling power, and it is only when the mind becomes as nearly as possible a perfect blank that the body can rest satisfactorily. If the body would rest, the mind must rest also. In other words, "think rest." "Let go" of everything mental and relax completely.—Rose Edson-Helme in Pilgrim.

LEAPING POWERS OF DEER.

Fence Seven Feet High Cleared by a Jump Up a Steep Hill.

I was sitting with the stalker among the rocks on the top of the high ridge which divides the forest of Glen Quoich from Clunty. We were quietly eating our lunch when we saw three stags coming toward the march fence a few hundred yards below us. They were not alarmed, but, as the stalker said, "moving to themselves."

The first two, without increasing their pace, jumped clean over the high deer fence. The third struck the top wire and was thrown head over heels backward. He went away a few yards, took a run, cleared it easily and joined his comrades.

Now, a story about Japanese deer. Several of them got out of a deer park on a mountain and into a large wood adjoining. We enticed them with a train of oats into a walled paddock off the deer park, having left a gap in the four inch wire netting of the deer fence at the edge of the wood.

When they were safely in, a man went round and closed the gap, and we opened the large gate into the deer park, thinking we could easily move them in. Not a bit of it. Directly the heaters began they charged them and jumped the wire piling back into the wood again.

This piling is seven feet high and is on very steeply sloping ground. They had to jump up hill, and it seemed to me so utterly incredible that any animal could jump such a height that I went to look at the place, and there sure enough the keeper showed me the hairs of the deer on the top wire where they struck it going over, and the men said they saw one deer tumble down on landing at the other side.—Country Life.

London's Crossings.

You can cross the three most dangerous streets in Manchester on an average 3,000 times in safety, but the three thousand and first time you will be run over. If you are not, somebody else will be in your place, for the average a year never fails by more than a point or two either there or in London. But in London you can only pass the crossing at Blackfriars bridge, which is the most dangerous spot in the city, 550 times. You may be the lucky person who escapes by chance, but somebody is certain to suffer to keep the average up, counting the accidents over a space of five years up to date. Next comes the Mansion House crossing, with a 700 to one chance.—London Answers.

A Hero's Tribute.

Lincoln said of Washington: Washington is the mightiest name on earth, long since mightiest in the cause of civil liberty, still mightiest in moral reformation. On that name a eulogy is expected. It cannot be. To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible; let none attempt it. In solemn awe pronounce the name and in naked, deathless splendor leave it shining on.

Almost a Ghost Story.

[The following contribution was received at the Tribune office un-solicited, and while it is not customary to publish anonymous contributions, the rule is broken this once that the public may know of the thrilling things that may happen to a quiet, law-abiding citizen who according to his own testimony is at home and contemplating sleep even at so early an hour as ten o'clock.]

The wind was blowing hard, and being heavily charged with rain, it made a soothing sound, as it beat ceaselessly against the wire screens and then against the window panes. It was ten o'clock in the evening, and I was ready to retire when a peculiar noise outside attracted my attention. We had just fixed up our lawn to the queen's taste, and thinking it was a cow that had strayed, I vigorously opened the door and sallied forth into the storm and darkness, with murder in my heart, and a large rock in each hand.

I peered into the gloom, which was made the blacker, by the light from the windows. As my eyes became accustomed to the darkness I could faintly make out two black objects, about the size of veal calves, making Sundry gyrations around the clothes-reel. Their movements were so unlike anything I had ever seen, that the murderous feeling in my heart was changed to one of self-preservation, and I stopped short in my advance, as I noted a sheen and a glitter, which the bodies of the objects reflected, and straightway pictures of sea-serpents and all sorts of impossibilities were conjured up in my mind, and they seemed to look in turn like everything thought of. I wanted to advance and slay them—beast, bird or fish—but then thought of those dependent on me and started to retreat, saying to myself "Other friends have flown before, on the morrow they will leave me." But the things seemed to divine my purpose, and I had hardly made up my mind, when they began coming toward me, with the most uncanny movements. They seemed to advance by tacking, first describing a half circle one way and then the other. My hair felt like porcupine quills, but fascination and fear rooted me to the spot; just then a strong gust of wind came up and they came toward me with a bound. I thought of my life insurance, shut my eyes and hurled with all my strength, one of the rocks I held. When I opened my eyes one of the fearsome things was lying at my feet in a heap, while the other was circling around me, like a demon gloating over a trapped victim. But now I came to my senses and realized that they were only two umbrellas that had been left open on the porch to dry and the wind drove them out on the lawn.

The one I fired at will never go on an excursion again, as it has three ribs broken and a hole in its skin sufficiently large to throw a cat thru. Moral: Do not believe in ghosts until you see one, and prove it.

SCARE CROW.

Barbers Study.

Tonsorial artists in all corners of the state are beginning to put in their leisure moments each day in the pursuit of learning. Within a couple of months the examinations under the new license law will be held, and altho it is not expected that any practicing barbers will be disqualified, no one cares to run the risk of being thrown out.

It is the medical side of the subject on which most of the razor wielders feel themselves a trifle shaky. According to the law every licensed barber must have a practical knowledge of the nature and treatment of all common diseases of the skin. Only a few of them can qualify on a scientific examination on this branch of the art. They have picked up a few rules of thumb concoctions which generally manage to have the desired effect, but only a few of them could tell an anti-septic solution from a soothing syrup, if called upon to name the ingredients of which each is composed.

Land Company Organized.

There was organized on Tuesday in this city a company to be known as the Taylor & Scott company, which will engage in the sale of land, making of abstracts and the selling of insurance, etc. The members of the new company are F. B. Barnes of Oshkosh, J. E. Daly, T. A. Taylor, William Scott, A. J. Hasbrouck and E. Oberbeck of this city. The election of officers resulted as follows: President—J. E. Daly. Vice President—A. J. Hasbrouck. Secretary and Treasurer—E. Oberbeck.

Authorized agents—Taylor and Scott. The new company are already engaged in plating a tract of about twenty-five acres on the west side and on Monday they expect to put a gang of men at work in building the streets so that the streets will be all laid out and improved before any building is done on the tract.

It is the intention of the company to sell their lots when wanted on a small payment down with a regular monthly payment thereafter. Several lots have already been sold, and several more spoken for. The company will also build several houses which they will sell on the installment plan.

"Bright Farce Comedy."

"The Star Boarder," billed to appear here on Monday, June 8th, is a sparkling farce comedy, constructed for laughing purposes, and admirably fulfills its mission.

The caste embraces many metropolitan footlight favorites headed by the clever comedian, Charles H. Boyle.

Palmist.

Josie Korpse, the celebrated palmist who has a national reputation will give readings in this city for one week. Stopping at Wisconsin House.

A Star Attraction.

Chas. H. Boyle, the leading comedian of "The Star Boarder" company, which comes to our opera house on Monday, June 8th, enough fun in his make up to please any audience himself.

Ask Your Doctor about it.

Any physician in this locality will tell you that with good food and digestion and a regular daily evacuation of the bowels, there is little danger from any kind of sickness. Re-Go Tonic Laxative Syrup is all the name implies, an ideal Laxative and Tonic, its regular use insures good digestion. Re-Go invigorates the liver, assists the kidneys to perform their regular functions, and is a mild and pleasant, yet certain medicine for producing regular and natural evacuations of the bowels. Sold by Sam Church druggist.

Evils Needing Correction.

A man interested in cemetery matters spoke to a reporter for the Tribune on Monday concerning a matter that should be stopped out of common decency, and that without any advice or admonition from outside sources.

The man in question stated that certain parties had been in the habit of taking flowers from the graves in the cemetery after the blooms had been placed there by the relatives and friends of deceased persons.

It seemed as if this could hardly be possible, but we were assured that it was a fact. We had heard of a person being so mean that he would steal the pennies off from a dead man's eyes, but we had supposed that this was a simile rather than a fact, but it seems that if not true, there are others that perform acts equally reprehensible. It should be stopped. The man who robs a church altar might produce evidence of the existence of circumstances that would in a measure justify him in the act, but there can be no excuse for the person who steals the flowers from a grave.

Another matter that was spoken of was the fact that many persons who visit the cemetery in rigs are in the habit of driving thru the narrow foot-paths, and as they are not broad enough for driveways the result is that in turning in or out of them the driver is invariably obliged to cut across the corner of somebody's lot, thereby injuring the looks of the lot to a great extent. These may seem like small matters, but it is the observance of the small things that enables those interested to make a place that it is a pleasure instead of a reproach to visit.

Card of Thanks.

In behalf of Wood county Post No. 22 Department of Wisconsin G. A. R. I desire to thank the citizens of the city of Grand Rapids and vicinity for helping us to make the services of the day of May 30th, Decoration day, a grand success. Personally we thank the mayor and common council for the financial aid given. We are also very grateful to the members of our city band for their valued service, and to the clergy who assisted in prayer and benediction, to the chorus class for the beautiful music rendered, both vocal and instrumental, to Miss Nellie Vincent for the recitation she gave, which seemed to be beyond criticism, to Mrs. Kate Townsend for her reading, to the mayor, Honorable W. Wheelan, for his personal appearance among us on the platform, and for his kind words of welcome. Thanks to our esteemed friend and citizen, Edmund Arpin, who so kindly and generously donated his time and money to furnish us with conveyance to carry us to and from the cemetery, to our honored soldier friend, H. W. Bolton of Madison, Wis., who gave us such a gratifying address, and last we desire to thank every one who helped in any way to observe the day in the way it was intended. It should be observed.

Interesting to Asthma Sufferers.

Daniel Bante of Otterville, Iowa, writes, "I have had tried about all the cough and asthma cures in the market and have received treatment from physicians in New York and other cities, but got very little benefit until I tried Foley's Honey and Tar which gave me immediate relief and I will never be without it in my house. I sincerely recommend it to all. Sold by Johnson & Hill.

On the first indication of kidney trouble, stop it by taking Foley's Kidney Cure.

Married men do not live longer than singlemen, it only seems longer, and if either are troubled with dyspepsia, biliousness or constipation, the only safe and reasonable thing to do is to buy a bottle of Re-Go Tonic Laxative Syrup, the certain cure for constipation, and live to die of old age. Sold by Sam Church druggist.

GENTLEMEN:—Your committee on roads and bridges would respectfully report as follows:

On January 17, 1903 your committee in conjunction with the town board of the town of Hanson contracted for the delivery and erection of a steel bridge according to petition granted at the November session, which called for an appropriation of $300, or one half of the cost of said bridge. On March 25, 1903, your committee met at the bridge and found same according to plans and specifications. The total cost of said bridge is $684 of which your committee would recommend that the county board pay $342 or one half of the cost of said bridge, all of which is respectfully submitted.

May 7, 1903. G. W. BROWN

The committee further recommended the petitions from the following towns for county aid in building bridges be granted:

Table with 3 columns: Town, Amount, Amount. Lists towns and their amounts.

Mr. Christensen moved the report of the committee be adopted and the amounts appropriated and levied against the proper towns. Adopted by call of roll as follows:

Ayes—Cowell, Berg, Snider, Herron, Bean, Hoffman, Christensen, Wolf, Kohel, Bennett, Burhopp, Provost, Porter, Iverson, Henke, Ross, Jackson, Ayers—18. Absent—Germer, Ingraham—2. City and village members not voting.

The following claimants work: G. W. Brown, $10.40; N. M. Berg, $11.90; and on motion allowed in full.

Mr. Arpin, chairman of committee on public property made the following report.

REPORT

To the Board of Supervisors of Wood County, Wisconsin:

GENTLEMEN:—Your committee on public property to whom was referred the following entitled claims, would respectfully report that we have had the same under consideration, and after a careful examination of all items contained therein, recommended the payment of the same.

Table with 3 columns: Name of Claimant, What for, Amount Recommended. Lists various claimants and their amounts.

Mr. Berg moved the report be adopted and the bills allowed as recommended. Carried.

Mr. Brazeau, District Attorney, made a verbal report on the bill of ex-sheriff James McLaughlin for $205.40 in regard to that part relating to the board of Henry Hillier.

On motion the bill was allowed in full.

Mr. Berg moved the District Attorney look up the legal residence of Henry Hillier and collect the amount paid for his board at the jail if possible. Carried.

The District Attorney made the following report on Justices Statements and officers fees. It was moved to allow same as reported unless objected to. Carried.

To the Honorable, the County Board of Wood County.

I, the undersigned District Attorney for said county, hereby submit my report in writing on the statements of Justices of the Peace, Constables, etc., filed with the county clerk of said county and by him delivered to me in accordance with the provisions of section 677 and 680 of the Revised Statutes.

By MARY WOOD Copyright, 1902, by T. C. McClure

The blue waves danced shimmeringly in the sunlight. The three lounging in the shadow of the pier found its coolness grateful.

Kitty Covington sat up suddenly, scattering the sand in all directions. "Oh, I've lost my St. Joseph!" she cried, with a little gasp of dismay.

The men lying at her feet rose with one accord, anxious to appease her ladyship. "Lost what?" they asked in chorus.

"My St. Joseph," petulantly. "And now I shall never find it in all this waste of sand, nor my affinity." Her voice rose to a wail as she looked hopelessly at the long stretch of beach over which they had strolled from the hotel. The rising tide had already obliterated their footprints.

"I never guessed that you had anything saintly about you," Tom Patton began teasingly.

She flashed him a look, but he went on unabashed. "And what's that you said about affinities?"

The girl's pretty face flushed pinkly. "Oh, nothing," she declared, with pal-lably assumed carelessness, gazing fixedly at a passing sail. But they would not be gainsaid, so finally she told them.

"It's an image of the saint I was wearing around my neck so that I"—she hesitated, but went on defiantly—"should know when I met my affinity."

A shout of laughter went up from the men.

Kitty jumped to her feet and started to poke diligently with her parasol in the sand where she had been sitting. "It only shows how ignorant you all are when you laugh like that," she said severely. "I have known girls who tried it, and it came true every time. I must find my saint or"—She paused expressively.

"Your saint is a sinner to leave you in the lurch in this heartless fashion," Tom said lightly. Kitty could not read below the laughter in his eyes. Her own flashed as he went on soothingly, "Perhaps your affinity will find you."

The girl turned to him scornfully. "And so you advise me to wait patiently, like an unknown continent, till I am discovered. Thank you, but I prefer to do my own choosing. I just must find that St. Joseph."

Allan Winthrop had been searching in the sand heap, his anxiety in marked contrast to Tom's coolness. He raised a face flushed by his exertions, saying reassuringly: "Oh, your saint shall be found, Miss Kitty; never fear. And no doubt the lucky man who brings it back to you will be your affinity."

Kitty gave him one of her charming smiles. Tom's indifference to her loss needed punishment. "I have unlimited faith in St. Joseph," she said sweetly; "so do find him for me, Mr. Winthrop."

The two started by the beach, Allan radiant over such unusual encouragement of his hopes. But Tom's face still wore a teasing smile as he picked up the forgotten parasol and followed them at his leisure.

During the next three or four days all the unmarried men, more or less secretly, spent considerable time and thought in search for the missing saint.

Was not Miss Covington the prettiest girl at the Point and the most willful? But her willfulness seemed only to add to her charm. No; not all the men. There was one who went on his way serenely, apparently quite oblivious to the necessity for exertion—Tom Patton.

Strangely enough, he was the one man whom Kitty ardently desired to bring to her feet. It was the old story of the pursuit of the unattainable re-acted with modern settings, though Kitty would have indignantly denied any deliberate angling. "Only I would like to have the pleasure of refusing him," she said to herself vindictively. "Even if I am only eighteen and ten years younger than he is, he must learn to take me seriously. Oh, I will teach him!"

A letter came to Miss Covington one afternoon that made her wrinkle her pretty forehead in surprise. It was from her cousin, Tom Carruth, rising

"What new craze has struck the Point?" the offending paragraph ran. "Here we have had three orders come in from men there in the last few days for images of St. Joseph. Are you having revival meetings? I guess not, particularly as each order states of the kind usually worn by young ladies as charms." We don't keep them on hand, so had to send for some. But we are expecting them, so three young ladies will be the happy recipients in a day or two."

Kitty's lips parted in a low whistle, but the walls of her room never betrayed the unladylike proceeding.

It was that very evening that Tom asked her to take a stroll up the beach. She assented with unusual alacrity.

They were far beyond the sound of the orchestra in the hotel ballroom before Tom broke the silence.

"I am going back to town Monday," he began abruptly. The girl on his arm shivered, but it might have been from chill at the sea mist which was rising. "A month has been an unusually long vacation for me. I was so worn out that they made me take it."

Still the girl made no reply.

"It has been a very happy time," he went on more gently, "and you have made it happy for me, little girl. It has been good of you to give so much of your time to a sober old fellow like me."

"Kitty drew away from him. "Why don't you say that it has been kind of you to give so much of your elevating influence to a foolish butterfly like myself?"

"Kitty!" With a masterful movement he put his hand under her chin and turned her face up to his in the moonlight. There were tears in the dark eyes, and the mouth trembled piteously.

"Kitty," he cried again, but this time his voice was full of mad happiness as he bent and pressed his lips to hers.

"And it was all without the help of St. Joseph," she said a little later.

The old teasing look came into Tom's face. "I have something to confess," he began meekly. He thrust his hand into his vest pocket and drew out—the St. Joseph. "I picked it up—the day you lost it," he said contritely. "I never meant to keep it. But I did want something of yours, seeing that I had no hope of winning you. And then I think I was a bit jealous of the old fellow. I was afraid he might do some unfair discriminating."

The next morning Kitty was offered three several St. Josephs, with the slight incumbrance of three hands and hearts. But she refused them all collectively. "I don't need any more St. Josephs," she said, with a charming blush. "For I have found my affinity." And by noon the Point was agog over the latest engagement. "It was all through the St. Joseph," the girls said. But two people know better.

A Lazy Race.

A lazier man than the average Burman it would be extremely hard to find. When it is absolutely necessary for him to work, he generally hits upon some method which will save him a lot of exertion. If he wishes to cultivate a piece of ground, he sets light to the brushwood as a cheap, easy and efficacious method of preparing the soil. For two or three years he cultivates that piece of land, and then he sets light to another spot, allowing the jungle to grow in the old place, which will be ready for reburning when the other ground wants a rest.

Rice growers dispense with plows, turning loose instead a number of buffaloes, who cut up the saturated soil with their hoofs. When a Burman has earned a little money, he immediately proceeds to spend it all, for the Burmese have no ambition to be rich and never hoard; consequently there are no large landowners, and, there being no aristocracy, the people are as near being on an equality as possible. Poor people are quite as rare as rich people, and the only beggars to be met with are the lepers, who sit on the steps of the pagodas.

Tabling.

"Tubbing," as the Britishers call it, is not so modern a custom after all. Even eccentric baths, such as those of milk and of flowers, are not a novelty. Isabella of Bavaria used to have great decoctions of chickweed brewed daily, and in them she would take her tub. Diana of Poitiers took her morning plunge in a tub of rain water. Eighteenth century beauties swore by baths mingled with linseed distilled with Mexican balm, which was dissolved with the yolk of an egg. Or they believed in preparations of almonds and melon juice, milk of green barley, veal bouillon and water distilled from the honey extracted from roses. Marie Antoinette was addicted to tubbing, and she always liked to have her bath flavored with wild thyme, laurel leaves, marjoram and a little sea salt. On the other hand, there was the Princess Eckmuhl, who at the age of eighty-five was renowned for her beautiful eyes, her exquisite complexion and her abundant hair and who never used anything but pure water on her face.—New York Press.

Grant's Boy Admirer.

An intimate friend of President Grant said to him one day, "General, my little boy has heard that all great men write poor hands, but he says he believes you are a great man in spite of the fact that you write your signature so plainly that anybody can read it."

The president took a card from his pocket, wrote his name on it and handed it to him.

"Give that to your boy," he said, "and tell him it is the signature of a man who is not at all great—but that fact must be kept a secret between him and me."

A Carious God.
Among the most extraordinary places of symbolism known to have been used by the early Asiatics was a figure of a donkey's head used as a representative of the deity. There is no doubt whatever that the same emblem was once used among the Hittites, the Egyptians and one or two other nations as a symbol of their red god, Sut. The superstition of the yellow donkey of India, the story of the swift ass of eastern Asia and the ass of Dionysius and many other marvelous ass stories are all survivals of that curious form of religious worship, the adoration of the ass's head.

AMERICAN FORESTRY.
The Object of Our Forest Policy Is the Making of Prosperous Homes.
President Roosevelt in a recent address before the Society of American Foresters, a professional body of which he is an associate member, declared the forest problem to be in many ways the most vital internal problem of the United States. The object of our forest policy, he said, is the making of prosperous homes. This policy must not be imposed upon the people. It can be effective only when the people believe that it is wise and useful; that it is indispensable. The president called attention to the close relation of forestry to the mining industry in the west, to the lumbering industry, whose very existence depends upon the success of forestry; to the railroads and to the grazing interests. Of the success of forestry in this country he said, "I believe that the foresters of the United States will create a more effective system of forestry than we have yet seen."

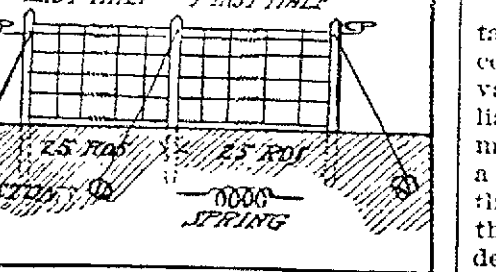

Among other things, President Roosevelt said: "And now, first and foremost, you can never afford to forget for one moment what is the object of our forest policy. That object is not to preserve the forests because they are beautiful, though that is good in itself, nor because they are refuges for the wild creatures of the wilderness, though that, too, is good in itself, but the primary object of our forest policy, as of the land policy of the United States, is the making of prosperous homes. It is part of the traditional policy of home making of our country. Every other consideration comes as secondary. The whole effort of the government in dealing with the forests must be directed to this end, keeping in view the fact that it is not only necessary to start the homes as prosperous, but to keep them so. That is why the forests have got to be kept. You can start a prosperous home by destroying the forests, but you cannot keep it prosperous that way."

"And you are going to be able to make that policy permanently the policy of the country only in so far as you are able to make the people at large and, above all, the people concretely interested in the results in the different localities appreciative of what it means. Impress upon them the full recognition of the value of its policy and make them earnest and zealous adherents of it. Keep in mind the fact that in a government such as ours it is out of the question to impose a policy like this from without. The policy as a permanent policy can come only from the intelligent conviction of the people themselves that it is wise and useful, nay, indispensable."

"Forestry is the preservation of forests by wise use," to quote a phrase I used in my first message to congress. Keep before your minds that definition. Forestry does not mean abbreviating that use; it means making the forest useful not only to the settler, the rancher, the miner, the man who lives in the neighborhood, but indirectly to the man who may live hundreds of miles off down the course of some great river which has had its rise among the forest bearing mountains."

The Centrifugal Separator.
The use of the centrifugal separator as a purifier of milk intended for retail trade has already reached some commercial importance. The disadvantages of the method, as pointed out by O. F. Hunziker in a recent bulletin of the New York Cornell experiment station, are the time and cost involved, and especially the fact that skim milk and cream when once separated do not mix well and when reunited the cream does not rise as abundantly as in fresh milk. "As the consumer judges the richness of milk largely by the amount of cream that rises on it, he naturally and unjustly regards centrifuged milk as an article poor in fat and is unwilling to pay the price it is really worth."

Expansion Spring in Wire Fencing.
I have used almost all kinds of devices for bracing the corner post and have found all a failure to a certain extent until I commenced to use the expansion spring, which takes all the strain from the post in winter and keeps your fence tight in summer, says an Ohio Farmer correspondent. In building a hundred rods of fence first set the corner post good and solid; anchor with stone three or four feet underground, which is far better than the brace, using the expansion spring in connection with each wire every twenty-five rods. At the end of fifty rods set another post and anchor one way to draw the first fifty rods, as that is as much as can be drawn at once, one wire at a time. When each wire is drawn tight enough to cause the springs to expand a half inch between each coil, it is tight enough. Fasten the wire, remove the ratchet, and the same with each wire. When you have finished the first half, fasten the wires to the middle post and go ahead with the last the same as the first, slacing the springs twenty-five rods apart, using the ratchet for tightening the wires; fasten the wires to your posts, then place stays of some kind to keep hogs from spreading them apart. This is one of the best methods for using straight wire that any farmer can try. The cut shows mode of building and anchoring; C P, corner posts.

COILED SPRING IN WIRE FENCE.

NEW SHIP OF WAR.
Lawyer's Invention May Revolutionize Methods of Naval Warfare.
Charles L. Burger, a New York lawyer, has invented what is said by naval experts to be the coming boat in sea fighting. It is called the subsurface boat, so named, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, because it consists of two long, narrow boats, one immediately above the other. The higher boat is on the surface of the water; the lower one is entirely submerged. It carries the gasoline engines which are to drive the queer craft sixteen knots an hour and also carries the torpedo tube with which the craft is to throw torpedoes against ships of war. The upper deck of this novel boat is of cellulose and unshrinkable. It carries a conning tower for the pilot. This conning tower is too small to be struck with a large shot, and it carries sufficient armor to protect the pilot from small shot. The subsurface boat is designed to fight in the open. It is supposed to be fast enough to dart in and deliver its torpedo without offering the guns of a battleship or cruiser enough exposed surface for an effective shot. One of the boats is being built by a company organized by the inventor, and if the craft meets expectations the invention will be purchased by the United States government.

Says Pearlmaking Is Easy.
The artificial production of pearls in large quantities is a simple problem in the view of Dr. H. Lyster Jameson. One cause of pearl formation proves to be a worm, which has its origin in the cockle or "tapestry shell," from which the larvae pass to the mussel and may be eaten with the latter by the elder or scoter, reaching maturity in the intestines of these birds. If the larvae remain in the mussel long enough, pearls are formed. With full knowledge of the life histories of these parasites it is believed that pearl oysters or pearl mussels may be infected to any desired extent by placing them in infected company, and the infected mollusks can then be left to themselves in suitable beds until the pearls are sufficiently developed.

New Birds From Fernando Po.
The recent return of Lieutenant Boyd Alexander from an ornithological expedition to the island of Fernando Po, on the western coast of Africa, has disclosed a new and wonderfully rich avifauna. Lieutenant Alexander's collection numbers 400 specimens, representing sixty-eight species, out of which thirty-two are new to science. Many of the nearest relatives of the new birds occur on Mount Kilima Ujaro and Mount Elgon, in east Africa, and, although the island is only separated from the mainland by thirty miles of water, very few of its birds are identical with the west African species. Apart from the birds, the island has a very rich fauna and flora.

The advantage of using distilled water, especially for mixing stock solutions, is quite thoroughly recognized by the majority of up to date photographers, but the methods of telling whether or not water is really distilled are not so well known. Here are some tests:

Place in several thoroughly cleaned test tubes some of the water to be tested. Add to the contents of the first tube a drop or two of a solution of silver nitrate, and if a milkiness is produced the presence of chlorides is evident. Put a few drops of hydrochloric acid in the second tube and then add a little chloride of barium solution and shake well. Milkiness shows that the water contains sulphates. In the third tube add to the water a small quantity of a 10 per cent solution of oxalate of ammonium. A precipitate indicates the presence of some calcium salt. A little ammonium sulphacyanide put in the fourth tube will cause the solution to turn a reddish color if iron is present. Put four ounces of water in a clear glass dish and add a drop of chemically pure sulphuric acid and then a drop of 1 per cent solution of permanganate of potash. View the solution against a piece of white paper, and if it preserves a slightly rose tint for several hours the water is pure, but any discoloration within a few minutes indicates the presence of vegetable matter in some form.

Collodion Paper Printing.
Probably one of the greatest mistakes made by amateurs in the use of collodion papers, especially the matt variety, is printing too light. A brilliant, permanent print on collodion matt paper can only be obtained, says a writer in the Brooklyn Eagle, by a thorough toning which reaches clear through the emulsion and leaves a deep, rich deposit of silver. When the print is too light, it cannot remain long in either the gold or platinum baths, and the result is a light surface toning which has practically no depth, and consequently the picture loses that rich tone which is the chief characteristic of collodion matt printing out papers.

The Milky Sea.
The milky sea, as it is known to mariners, is not yet fully understood. It seems to be most common in the tropical waters of the Indian ocean and is described as weird, ghastly and awe inspiring and as giving the observer on shipboard the sensation of passing through a sort of luminous fog, in which sea and sky seem to join and all sense of distance is lost. The phenomenon is probably due to some form of phosphorescence.

NEKOOSA.

Another base ball game was played here last Sunday. The "Saratoga Chaps" and the "Ever Awake" team played the first game during the forenoon. The farmers were dressed in "bull fight" red suits. A number of the local fans took them for Turks because of their playing and the color of their uniforms. So confident were they of success that they spread their foregone conclusions to the country folks far and near. About a dozen of them smote the air at the mercy of Bobbie Herrick, the local boy pitcher. Until the first part of the eighth inning the visitors did not have a score, but thru an error they were fortunate enough to save themselves from being shut out. The score was in a bi-metallic ratio, 16 to 1 in favor of the "Ever Awake" team. The first team played with the Sand Burs of Grand Rapids in the afternoon. The local team won the game by a score of 13 to 5. They will play at Plainfield next Sunday.

Robert H. Howart, a resident of Marshfield from 1881 to 1892, spent last Thursday and Friday here shaking hands with old friends. He is now chief engineer for the paper company at Nekoosa. Mr. Howart built a machine shop and foundry soon after he came here on the site of Crosby & Meyers cheese warehouse. At that time the building was surrounded by trees and in an isolated spot. He was member of the council two years and one of the first captains in the volunteer fire department. Mr. Howart was surprised at the great progress Marshfield had made during the eleven years he had been absent. Marshfield News.

Formaldehyd for Potato Scab.

The Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment Station offers the following in one of its bulletins:

"Formaldehyd may be used to lessen damage from potato scab. Immerse the unsprouted and uncut seed potatoes for two hours in a solution made by adding one-half pound of 40 per cent. formaldehyd to 15 gallons of water. If the tubers are deeply scabbed, extend the time to three or four hours. After treatment cut the tubers in the usual manner. They may be handled freely without danger. The same solution may be used five or six times in succession if the treatment is continued a little longer each time. Do not use the potato solution for grain smut, as it is too strong."

Driven To Desperation.

Living at an out of the way place, remote from civilization, a family is often driven to desperation in case of accident, resulting in Burns, Cuts, Wounds, Ulcers, etc. Lay in a supply of Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's the best on earth. 25c, at John E. Daly's drug store.
